SERENITY OF 'THE ADORATION' AT CHRISTMAS

Serenity, wonder and quiet joy. Those aspects of the Christmas idea are expressed in contemporary terms by Mill Valley artist Peter Girolami. The work is based on Girolami's original silk screen print "The Adoration." It was especially adapted by him for the Independent-Journal at Christmas. As with many of the artist's motifs, this religious scene has a strong Mexican feeling in its boldness of design and color.

East Due White Yule; Rescuers Aid Indians

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The makings of a white Christmas—from one to five inches of new snow—drifted onto the holiday season landscape from Maryland northward into New England today.

Late season shoppers and impatient children awoke to find five inches of snow had fallen during the early morning at Boston and New Haven, Conn. Three inches were on the ground at Providence, R.I.

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported one inch of snow at La Plata, Md., about 30 miles south of Washington, D.C.

Millions Jam Ways Home For Christmas

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Millions of Americans, brimming with the spirit of the holiday season, braved packed airline, bus and railroad terminals or took to the highways today for the annual Christmas pilgrimage home.

Parking at San Francisco International Airport was nonexistent, with every space—and then some—taken by last night, travelled in clear, cold weather travelled in clear, cold weather that covered much of the nation from the Rockies east. There was new snow to complicate highway travel in parts of New England, and rain in the southeast.

As the travel tempo gradually increased, so did the grim statistics of death on the nation's highways.

At noon EST United Press International counted 141 deaths on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

The breakdown:

Traffic 162
Fires 10
Miscellaneous 3
Total 175

The National Safety Council warned that from 625 to 725 Americans "are likely to die in traffic" crashes this weekend unless special precautions, appropriate to the need, are taken.

I suddenly realized that the nicest gift a little girl could have is the love and happiness of her family.

My best gift was not underneath the tree gaily wrapped. It was all around me.

State Promises Cave-In Probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The

State Division of Industrial Safety says the cave-in which trapped 17 workmen in a California Aqueduct tunnel near Gorman "will be looked into very carefully."

"We've had three men up there continuously since the accident happened," said John Dupre, assistant chief of the division's Southern California office in Los Angeles.

The workmen were freed unharmed at 11 p.m. Thursday. All were given a paid vacation through Jan. 1 by the joint contractor, Dravor Corp., Guy F. Atkinson Co. and S.J. Groves Sons.

"When they had heard the king, they departed: and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was."

These familiar words, from the gospel according to St. Matthew, will be sounded throughout Marin churches in celebration of the birth of Christ. Rites will vary, but the attention will be on the Christ Child.

Tradition Gives Novato A Glow

Luminaries glowed again last night on Grant Avenue and the adjoining block of Highway 101 in Novato in extension of a local Christmas decoration custom to the downtown area.

The luminaries, candles set in sand in paper bags, will be lighted again tonight, Christmas Eve, and Christmas night, as similar decorations appear in many residential sections of Novato.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce substituted the candle luminaries for planned electrically lighted decorations.

LBJ Meets Pope In Historic Flight*Visits Vietnam Base, Pakistan On Way

ROME (UPI) — President Johnson flew into Rome tonight for talks with Pope Paul VI who has offered to help in finding a peaceful settlement to the Vietnam war.

The presidential Air Force 1 jet liner landed at Ciampino airport at 6:55 p.m. (9:55 a.m. PST) after a 7 hour 40 minute flight from Karachi, Pakistan.

Earlier Johnson stopped off on his way home from Australia to visit with American airmen in Thailand and U.S. servicemen in South Vietnam. (See pictures, page 2.)

Italian Communists called for demonstrations against Johnson and leaflets protesting his visit were hurled at the U.S. Embassy on Via Veneto from passing cars this afternoon. Several hundred policemen were deployed later around the embassy to guard against any possible violence.

More than 100 demonstrators, waving paper Viet Cong flags and "Johnson go home" posters marched through the heart of Rome shortly before the President's arrival.

They chanted "Free Vietnam" and distributed anti-Johnson leaflets in the Piazza di Spagna.

TWO MEETINGS

The President was expected to tell Pope Paul of his deep desire and continuing efforts to reach peace in Southeast Asia.

Johnson's first call was on Italian President Giuseppe Saragat. The meeting with the pontiff in Vatican City followed.

Johnson, making a President's first round-the-world flight, landed in Karachi in his silver and blue Air Force 1 jet that took him to memorial services in Melbourne for former Australian Prime Minister Harold Holt and to visit U.S. fliers in Thailand, then to Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam.

TALKS TO KHAN

Johnson used the refueling stop in Karachi for talks with President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan. Ayub Khan dashed in from his capital at Rawalpindi for the talks with the U.S. chief executive.

The two men walked together into the airport building for what aides called an informal talk.

Johnson will have covered more than 27,000 miles when he

McCarthy Challenges FCC For Video Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by the major networks, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is asking the government to insure he gets radio and television time to answer statements by President Johnson.

The Minnesota Democrat, who says he'll challenge Johnson in several Democratic presidential primaries next year, asked yesterday that the Federal Communications Commission order NBC, CBS and ABC to provide him air time.

His FCC appeal came shortly after ABC and NBC, following an earlier stand by CBS, rejected McCarthy's request for equal time to answer President Johnson's televised assertion Tuesday that the Minnesotan was working with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in a quest for the nomination.

ALLIANCE DENIED

Both McCarthy and Kennedy have repeatedly denied they're allied in an effort to oust Johnson.

The networks said McCarthy isn't entitled to equal time under laws governing broadcasting because Johnson is not a declared candidate for re-election.

Saying Johnson won't run next year denies "a fact which every American child knows," said Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager, in the appeal to the FCC.

"The people of the country have the right to know," Clark continued, "whether the FCC is going to permit a President who is obviously a candidate for re-election to use the powerful network TV and radio facilities without a right of response by other announced candidates."

Clark said the FCC should either order the networks to give McCarthy equal time or hold a

Berlin Wall Shut

Again For Holiday

BERLIN (AP) — Again this year, Christmas in Berlin is a season of being divided.

For a few West Berliners there will be "hardship" passes to cross through the Communist wall to visit friends or relatives in the East. For a few East Berlin pensioners there also will be special crossing passes.

But the vast majority of the city's 3.3 million people, 2.2 million in the West, will be able to do nothing more than wave across the wall.

It is the second Christmas in a row that the Communist East Germans have refused to issue passes for the West Berliners to go to the East. It is the fourth passless Christmas since the wall went up in August 1961.

It is now 18 months since the last seasonal passes were issued and since negotiations for a new East-West pass agreement were broken off over the issue of an East German demand for recognition. The West does not recognize East Germany.

West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt, himself West Berlin mayor until a year ago, said this week that the pass issue was part of an East German campaign to promote uneasiness among West Berlin's people.

The East Germans, however, have been operating a hardship pass office for months without any formal agreement.

About 3,000 passes a month are issued and usually a West Berliner can obtain one, for such things as weddings, deaths, births or serious illness in his East Berlin family.

Except for the elderly, East Berliners have been shut off from the West since 1961. On Christmas Day, some of the many people waving across will have written and told relatives.

Junta Frees 2,500 Greek Prisoners

ATHENS (UPI) — The military regime today granted a Christmas amnesty to almost 2,500 political prisoners and received from a commission a new draft constitution for Greece.

Premier George Papadopoulos said among those granted amnesty were former Berkeley professor Andreas Papandreou, son and political ally of former Premier George Papandreou, and composer Mikis Theodorakis, who wrote the music for "Zorba the Greek."

In Rome, self-exiled King Constantine applauded the amnesty and said he hoped it was a sign "all Greeks soon will have the opportunity to express themselves freely." The king said he was "especially grateful for the amnesty for all those who . . . supported me in my efforts to hasten the day when Greece will be a democracy again." It was reference to his abortive counter-coup two weeks ago.

Informed sources said the draft constitution gives the military regime continued dictatorial powers over political parties and maintains King Constantine's prerogatives intact.

Charilaos Mitrelias, chairman of the 20-member drafting commission, said the new constitution would not change the king's prerogatives but "has only clarified them." He did not elaborate on how the king's prerogatives to appoint and dismiss governments and declare war would be clarified.

Mitrelias, head of the supreme court, said the draft allows only one no-confidence motion against the government in any one calendar year unless a simple majority of parliament requests it.

The early residents of Boys Town, Neb., staged a roving vaudeville show to earn money for the fabled home for boys.

tives to be at a certain place at a certain time. They will hold up children, especially new born babies.

Carefully watching will be beefed up East German border patrols with their machine-guns, dogs, bunkers, watch towers, trip wires, sirens, searchlights, flares and motorcycles. The guards have orders to shoot any fleeing East German caught in the final "death strip" before the wall.

It is the second Christmas in a row that the Communist East Germans have refused to issue passes for the West Berliners to go to the East. It is the fourth passless Christmas since the wall went up in August 1961.

It is now 18 months since the last seasonal passes were issued and since negotiations for a new East-West pass agreement were broken off over the issue of an East German demand for recognition. The West does not recognize East Germany.

TWO TRUCES

The Viet Cong called a three-day cease-fire beginning just after midnight Sunday (8 a.m. PST) today. The U.S. and the Allies will observe a 24-hour Christmas truce starting at 6 p.m. tomorrow (2 a.m. PST).

The clash near Saigon involved a patrol of the "screaming Eagles" 101st Airborne Division who killed 14 Communists in a Viet Cong force they ran across during training. There were no casualties reported among the Americans who arrived Dec. 9 with the rest of the 101st.

U.S. military sources said field commanders had ordered their men to keep a watch on Communist movements during the holiday ceasefire. The Americans are prevented from initiating any action during the 24-hour period beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Communists have used the truce periods to move war supplies and shift locations of their bases.

NO FLYING

The ceasefire will ground all warplanes except reconnaissance flights over North and South Vietnam, but military sources said the bombing of the Ho Chi Minh trail where it winds through Laos will continue despite the truce.

The air war over North Vietnam was limited by monsoon weather to only 77 missions, but they cost two American warplanes shot down by Communist ground gunners, spokesmen said.

One of the downed planes was a new A7 Corsair, the first one of the new planes to be lost since they entered Vietnam service Dec. 3, the spokesmen reported.

The other was an A4 Skyhawk.

Cyprus Crisis Eases

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After two weeks of haggling, the U.N. Security Council has agreed on a resolution aimed at keeping peace on Cyprus by extending the life of the U.N. peace force there for three more months.

The resolution was adopted unanimously yesterday by the 15-nation council.

Its mandate, in effect since March 1964, would have expired next Tuesday.

Health Chief Quits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Dr. Lester Brew Breslow, state director of public health, has resigned his $26,000-a-year post to which he was appointed by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1965, an administration spokesman said yesterday.

The spokesman said Breslow, 52, who is president-elect of the American Public Health Association, has submitted his resignation orally and was expected to tender his written notice shortly.

PASADENA (UPI) — Radio communications with Mariner 4 have ceased. The spacecraft which took the only close-up pictures of Mars in 1965 will now wander uncontrolled across the heavens, pushed off course 45 million miles in space by swarms of micrometeoroids.

The barrage started Dec. 10, three days after Mariner 4 exhausted its supply of nitrogen gas used for periodic spurts to correct attitude leaning.

Five Western States Black Out

'Like Dominoes' As Line Snaps

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Breaks in two 230,000 volt lines near the Idaho-Oregon border today were believed to have caused a power failure which darkened portions of five western states last night.

The blackout affected most of Utah, large areas of southern Idaho, eastern Oregon, Western Wyoming and southwestern Montana.

A spokesman for the Idaho Power Co., Boise, said today the main transmission lines between the Oxbow and Brownlee Dams west of McCall, Idaho, were snapped by an unknown cause.

He said when the Boise operator noticed the failure and tested the intertie system it caused the Brownlee generating plant to drop out of the system.

The remaining power units in the vast intertie system dropped out "like dominoes" as the power failure spread in a generally southeasterly direction.

The breaks occurred in the rugged Hells Canyon area and power company officials said crews were en route to determine what caused the lines to snap.

Officials said more than a foot of heavy, wet snow has fallen in the area during the past two days and speculated the snow may have snapped the lines.

A spokesman for Utah Power and Light Co. likened the power failure spread to "falling dominoes."

Russian Girl 'Surprised' By Reception

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pretty stewardess on a Russian ship, stricken ill at sea and rushed here for hospital treatment, got a warm reception from San Franciscans that surprised her, she says, and swept away her fears of coming ashore sick in a strange land.

Mrs. Ludmilla Ivanova, 20, is well now and will be back "home" for Christmas—aboard the Russian oceanography vessel Ogon.

The pretty Russian girl speaks no English. The hospital provided an interpreter. Doctors said she was suffering from a kidney infection.

When the story of Ludmilla's plight was published, public reaction brought telephone calls, get well cards, and many other offers of help. The uncertainty and fear which gripped the young woman when she was taken to the hospital dissipated.

She told her interpreter she was surprised by the public response and her hospital care. Her recovery was rapid.

She was to be taken aboard the Coast Guard cutter Point Heyer and returned to the Ogon standing 12 miles off the Golden Gate this afternoon.

Grant J. Halsing will appeal design review board rejection of his plan for a neon sign at 1914 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The commission also will consider establishing a period during which rejected applications may not be resubmitted.

Chinese Restaurant Is Victim Of Prank

Someone had 30 Chinese diners sent last night to the home of Dr. Frank Hamilton Howard, a dentist, who lives at 55 Monte-cito Drive, San Rafael.

Officer Charles Brobeck of San Rafael police, who investigated the bogus $52.90 food order, said he had difficulty getting information from the excited victims at the Chinese Food Express, 1559 Fourth Street, San Rafael. The food order was telephoned to the restaurant.

Deputies Protest Prisoner Transport

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Deputy Sheriff's Association, affiliated with the Teamsters Union, complains that deputies are being compelled singly to transport ill prisoners from the Hall of Justice to San Francisco General Hospital in taxicabs.

An association spokesman declared Thursday that it was "dangerous" for one deputy to transport a prisoner "who might have an accomplice to make an escape."

The California gold rush led to establishment of the San Francisco mint in 1854, says the National Geographic.

Marinwood Girl Seriously Hurt By Auto's Plunge

An 18-year-old Marinwood girl, on her way home from a Christmas party, suffered head injuries yesterday when she was thrown from her car on Highway 101 at the Forbes overpass in San Rafael.

Dulce Louise Perkins, 18, of 201 Adelbostone Court, Marinwood, apparently dozed while her car was northbound on the highway and it hit the center divider guard rail, bounced off and then crashed through the concrete bridge railing, throwing its driver out on the road, at 10:40 p.m., according to the California Highway Patrol.

The car careened down the bank, landing on its side 50 feet below, near the railroad tracks, patrolmen said.

Miss Perkins was reported in good condition today, with scalp cuts, at Marin General Hospital.

Fluorides May Help Repair Hearing Loss

CHICAGO (SS) — Hearing loss caused by bone deterioration in the inner ear is being restored through the use of fluoride, the chemical that reduces tooth decay.

Dr. George Shambaugh, ear specialist at the Northwestern University Medical School, finds that daily doses strengthen the temporal bone that encloses the complicated hearing apparatus. In many people this bone softens with age, causing hearing problems.

In 20 per cent of 157 patients, 20 milligrams of fluoride given after each meal for three to six months, has recalcified the softening bone. In five per cent more the healing process has started.

A person with chronic kidney disease should not take the treatment, but Dr. Shambaugh says most people can take it safely and will find it essential to their health.

Rudy Vallee Eyes Politics Career

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Rudy Vallee says he may try a political tune and run for mayor of Los Angeles.

Vallee revealed Thursday he was considering the bid but said "first I'm going to wait and see what my friend Sam Yorty decides to do."

Yorty, mayor since 1961, is said to be weighing a race for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate. He is vacationing in Acapulco, Mexico.

"It's not the shortest route back to the White House — through Vietnam. But because it is almost Christmas, and because my spirit would be here with you anyway, I had to come," Johnson said at Cam Ranh Bay, standing atop a flatbed truck with 2,450 GIs mustered around him under a tropical sun.

Guadalcanal Yule Music Is Recalled

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An organ will be playing Christmas Eve at the Freedom Hill USO in Da Nang, Vietnam, and—if the wish of a one-time battle chaplain is honored—one of the selections played will be "My Yidisher Mama."

The Rev. Fred Gehring, a Vincentian father at Philadelphia's St. Vincent's Catholic Church, says the song would be fitting because 25 years ago, on Christmas Eve on Guadalcanal, another U.S. serviceman in another war played the number.

His name was Marine Cpl. Barney Ross, a world lightweight and welterweight boxing champion in the 1930s.

It was because of Father Gehring and Ross, who died in January, that the organ was sent to the Da Nang USO.

Known as the "Padre of Guadalcanal," Father Gehring was celebrating Christmas Mass on that island in 1942. But there was no one to play the portable organ in his chaplain's tent.

Ross, a Jew, told the Navy chaplain he knew a few numbers and Father Gehring told him to play.

After rounds of Christmas carols were played, Ross put in his request. It was "My Yidisher Mama," and today Father Gehring says he can think of no more touching song.

Ross died of cancer of the throat. In April a Chicago organ company decided to send an organ to Vietnam in his memory.

Santa To Assist Cancer Society

He will distribute gifts delivered previously to his home by the children's parents. Last year he called at 11 homes and raised about $300.

fuels. The Weather Bureau attributed the cold to extensive high pressure areas centered in Texas and Colorado.

Cloudy skies loomed over the Pacific Northwest, from northern Florida to Michigan and the lower Great Lakes and all of the Atlantic Coast, but crystal clear skies brightened the nation elsewhere.

On the second official day of winter, temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 8 below zero at Alexandria, Minn., to 72 at Key West and Fort Myers, Fla.

Although early morning temperatures dipped below zero in Arizona, the temperature was expected to rise. Rescue workers said additional victims of the storm would probably be discovered in isolated areas, but not until the spring thaw.

Second place of $15 went to Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Richter of 430 Via Herbosa, for a decoration featuring a mobile Santa Claus. Third prize of $10 was taken by Mr. and Mrs. E. Doran of 467 Calle de la Mesa, for a theme of Christmas jump.

Honorable mention went to Mr. and Mrs. Collins McCrae, 464 Calle de la Mesa; Mr. and Mrs. James A. Swenson, 424 Alameda de la Loma; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Sheppard, 385 Alameda del Prado; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin S. Dahlquist, 1005 Calle Empinada.

Judges were Mrs. Irving Dietrich, Mrs. Helmuth Geiger and Gus Kosturas.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Glenn Gamper, 23, had been pronounced "dead." Her body was resting on a slab of marble in the city morgue yesterday. Then an alert coroner detected faint twinges of life.

Today the college student was in a coma—but alive—at city hospital.

Dr. Leo Mulligan, chief of staff at the hospital, said the girl was in critical condition and was suffering from exposure.

Miss Gamper was rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment shortly after Mrs. Helen Taylor, the city coroner, began preliminary steps for an autopsy at the morgue.

"While we were looking for her I.D. card," Mrs. Taylor said, "her stomach began to move and she started to breathe."

Miss Gamper, a senior at the University of Missouri at Normandy, was discovered beneath a tree in Forest Park in below freezing weather early yesterday by a group of youths.

She was taken to city hospital where she failed to show signs of life. There was no blood pressure. A thermometer with a low point of 94 degrees disclosed no body temperature. An intern pronounced her dead and she was taken to the morgue.

The ladies, of no known address, are to appear in Municipal Court Jan. 12 for preliminary hearing.

Tracy C. Bonner, 23, and Donna Jean Curtis, 33, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to charges of possessing forged money orders at the R&M Style Shop in San Rafael Tuesday night.

San Rafael police said the women used the money orders to buy a jacket, a pair of shoes and three bowls and collect $309.31 in cash in the city's shopping district before they were arrested.

The ladies, of no known address, are to appear in Municipal Court Jan. 12 for preliminary hearing.

Trendsetters In Maxiskirts Herald Next Fall's Uniform

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—The saddest words of tongue or pen:

The hem is coming down again.

A professional girl watcher uttered this epitaph for the miniskirt on King's Road, most swinging of London's thoroughfares, the other day. To a casual observer the couple seemed premature.

DESPITE THE COLD, dozens of leggy girls were passing by, their skirts only an inch or two this side of a visit to the local police station. They vastly outnumbered the calf-length or maxiskirts turning up at the ratio of one or two to the block.

But the professional said the casual legmen were living in a fool's paradise. The three-year run of the great free show in London's streets, buses and subways is drawing to a close.

"You see," said John Hurst, owner of the Rag Doll boutique, "it's not how many maxiskirts you're beginning to notice. It's who's wearing them. And I recognize some of the girls now in long coats and long skirts or culottes as the trend setters."

"They were also the first into mini and microskirts. Fashion never starts with the masses. The masses follow the leaders," he said.

Hurst said he shared the regret Britons and tourists alike will feel at the end of such innocent pleasures as following a miniskirt up the steep steps to the top of a double-decker bus.

"IT'S AN INEXORABLE law of fashion," he said, "that what goes up comes down and, after a while, goes up again. Two things brought the hemlines down this time. One was the popularity of the 'Bonnie and Clyde' film with fashions of the twenties.

"The other was less romantic—it's the cold winter we're having."

Hurst predicted that the first to follow the trendy maxiskirters—who include Brigitte Bardot, pop singer Lulu and assorted models—will be the girls with fat legs, spavined knees, bulging thighs; in brief, the girls for whom short skirts were a tragedy in the first place.

Satire Picked As Nominee

ROME (AP)—The Italian film industry today chose "La Cina E' Vincina"—China is Near—as Italy's candidate for the 1967 Academy Award as best foreign film.

The picture caused tremendous controversy at the Venice Film Festival last summer. Critics claimed it was anti-everybody.

But it was an instant success among Italian intellectuals who hailed it as a brilliant and penetrating satirical dissection of corruption in all levels of Italian political life.

TOMORROW NIGHT? Danish Cabbie Says World Due To End

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Hundreds of Danes who are members of a cult led by a 46-year-old cab driver believe that an atomic war will kill two-thirds of the earth's population by midnight tomorrow.

Earth won't be destroyed but millions of flying saucers will land and transport the earthlings who are left to outer space where their spiritual level will be raised, they believe.

The cab driver predicting all this is Knud Weiking, pronounced Viking. He says his information comes from Orthon, who he describes as leader of the galaxy that contains earth.

Weiking tells this story of his "vision": Orthon came to him last March. At first the cab driver only heard his voice but later he showed up in person. He has long hair and dreamy eyes. When he talks through Weiking, he uses phrases from the Bible and lectures on cosmic laws.

Other productions scheduled for the season include "Comedy of Errors" and "Macbeth." Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m. through Sept. 28, with matinees slated towards the end of the season.

the two groups have been held this week and some progress has been reported.

Meanwhile, a one-man "informational" picket line was set up by the musicians Friday in front of the War Memorial Opera House, where the symphony normally plays.

Violinist Zelik Kaufman, the sole picket, distributed leaflets explaining the musicians' side of the dispute. They declared the musicians were not attempting to seize control of the artistic aspect of the orchestra as charged by the association.

They claimed they are merely seeking "a living wage" and guarantees that the association will resolve grievances by the musicians.

Holiday Events Set By Marinwood Center

Special school holiday recreation events have been scheduled by the Marinwood Community Services District, including an ice skating party at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Raydine's ice skating rink, Corte Madera.

A roller skating party is set for 1 p.m. Thursday at Skateland, San Rafael.

Folk guitar classes, sponsored by the district, begin Dec. 29; tumbling and judo classes for children begin Jan. 4.

Probation Aide Resign After Morals Verdict

Joseph Thurston Joslin, convicted of indecent exposure before two young children, resigned yesterday as deputy Marin County probation officer.

A municipal court jury yesterday convicted Joslin, 39, of exposing himself to a boy, 5, and girl, 8, in Lucas Valley Sept. 18. He was acquitted of a charge of child molesting.

He was arrested Sept. 18 after a chase during which a San Rafael police officer fired a bullet which came within inches of Joslin's head.

Joslin was suspended from his job as probation officer assigned to juvenile hall the next day.

He came to the county probation department in October, 1964, after working nearly six years with the probation office in San Diego County. Before that, he spent 15 months with a private child care institution in Southern California.

The annual New Year's Eve party at the Marinwood Community Center Dec. 31 is limited to 80 couples, with reservations available through the center or from Wayne Heldt of 230 Blackstone Drive.

Registration for the winter tiny tots program is set for 1 p.m. Jan. 3 for residents and 2 p.m. the same day for non-residents.

A trip to Donner Summit is scheduled Jan. 20. More information about the trip and classes is obtainable at the center.

Jail, Fine On Drunken Driving

Enar Gorman, 58, of 59 Cole Drive, Marin City, was sentenced to five days in jail and fined $250 in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for driving while drunk on Highway 101 Sept. 4. The California Highway Patrol arrested her.

Russell E. Lessig of 425 Locust Street, Sausalito, was fined $250 and placed on a year of probation for drunken driving Sept. 25 on Highway 101 in Novato, where the CHP arrested him.

Harold A. Butcher of Brentwood, Contra Costa County, was fined $289 and placed on a year of probation for drunken driving Thursday on Tiburon Boulevard, when the highway patrol arrested him.

JOKE PAYS OFF Pupils Give Teacher A Plush Car

For years, whenever sixth grade pupils of Frederick B. Baguio asked what he wanted for his birthday or Christmas, he laughingly told them he wanted a Jaguar XKE.

And for years, at Loma Verde School in the Novato Unified School District, students have laughed with him — until this year, when Liz Dougherty, student body president, got serious. She called rental agencies, trying to find one of the long sleek sports cars to rent, and prepared to canvass students for donations to pay the rental fee.

Agencies politely said they had no Jaguars, or just snickered. Then Liz wrote a letter to E. F. Sweeny British Motors in San Rafael.

The car firm came through with an offer of free use of a Jaguar for 24 hours and yesterday, with a grin splitting his round face, Baguio, of Fairfax, picked up his car-for-a-day.

"This is fantastic," he said.

Innocent Plea

Lucia Cunningham of Belmont, San Mateo County, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court Thursday to a charge of passing a $399.73 bad check at the Hi Ho Motel in Alto July 11.

Preliminary hearing on the charge was set for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 18.

Summerskill Probe Calls Him 'Prudent'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A task force of California state college trustees has exonerated President John Summerskill of San Francisco State College in the handling of a Dec. 6 campus riot.

The investigating group met yesterday in a closed meeting and decided Summerskill acted "with prudence" in the matter. The group will reconvene Jan. 5 for a further review of the case.

The review was prompted after Black Power and antiwar demonstrators rioted, leaving some buildings in disarray. Summerskill told college officials he acted that day "in accordance with the advice of the San Francisco police chief."

Committee Chairman Donald M. Hart said the group's final conclusion after the Jan. 5 meeting will be passed "solely on the merits."

Summerskill's job as president of the college depends on the ultimate findings of the group.

Barricades Stolen

Thieves in the past month have stolen two street barricades and two flasher lights from a construction project at 215 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley, police reported. Value of the stolen items was estimated at $78.

St. Luke Told Story In Words Unequalled

NO EDITOR IN his right mind would attempt to compete with St. Luke when it comes to reporting and commenting on the events all Christendom is about to commemorate.

St. Luke wrote what we now know as the New Testament Book of Luke about 30 years after the crucifixion. It may originally have been conceived as the first part of what we now know as the Book of Acts.

Some scholars believe that Luke — frequent companion of Saints Paul and Mark — may have spent many hours with Jesus' mother, Mary, listening to her personal reminiscences of her wonderful Son. And he may have learned additional authoritative information directly from Jesus' own brother James, bishop of Jerusalem.

St. Paul referred to his companion, Luke, as "the beloved physician." Leading scholars of Greek culture of that period see in Luke's writings the hand of a cultivated Hellenist, able to express himself with ease in good, idiomatic Greek. They also see in his writings evidence that he was acquainted with the historical method of his day and had studied thoroughly the Greek Old Testament, which his own writings resemble.

ANOTHER TRADITION holds that Luke was also a painter. He has long been accepted as the patron saint of both physicians and artists.

A gentle by birth, Luke lived to the age of 84. The details of his conversion to Christianity unfortunately are not known.

He probably wrote the account of Jesus' birth while living in Greece. Obviously he was a perceptive, sensitive writer with a knack for telling a story and depicting a scene, without wasting his words.

His book of Gospel has been described as "the most beautiful book ever written."

Here, in the so-called King James translation, is his account of what we now call the first Christmas:

AND IT CAME TO PASS in those

No Time For Brickbats

At this season, we forego casting brickbats: instead—

A BOUQUET to all who keep Christmas, be they Christians, Jews, Moslems, Buddhists, atheists, or whatever. May they keep it in their days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

"(And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

"And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

"And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Behtlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David.)

"To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

"And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

"And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

"And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

"And the angel said unto them, 'Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.'

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

"And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

To repeat, no editor in his right mind would attempt to compete with St. Luke on the eve of the Christmas holidays.

—Jack Craemer

hearts long after the holiday is past! And may the spirit of Jesus Christ (and of others revered in other religions) help them and us that "all things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them!"

A writer who prepares articles, scripts or books with an eye to the basic dignity of man;

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Soap Box Produces Helpful Suggestion

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Under my Christmas tree I found a soap box. I am now standing on it. (That's a joke, son — if I stood on anything higher than a sheet of paper I'd fall off.)

Christmas is traditionally the time for counting one's blessings and it always makes me remember my first Christmas in Novato.

I am a widow and I and my three children had just moved to California so that I could take therapy, since I am totally paralyzed on my left side. We knew not a single person in Novato and money was non-existent. All of our Christmas greetings came from very far away. 'Twas not a very joyful time for us.

The following spring I joined what is known as the Indoor Sports Club. This is an organization for permanently physically handicapped adults. We now have many friends, thanks to the Indoor Sports organization. I can't help but believe that there must be dozens of disabled adults who are alone in California and in need of friends and activities.

Persons interested in joining are invited to contact me by writing to B. Wright at 1566 South Novato Boulevard, Novato 94947.

Thank you for listening. I couldn't seem to find a single protest in my soap box. That's all right; I'm not a very good marcher anyway. I'm so old-fashioned I can even remember why we celebrate Christmas in the first place.

Merry Christmas everyone!

GOLDEN GATE VIEW 'One Man, One Vote' May Doom A Tradition

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

An unpleasant political fact of life for Northern California is the increased power of Southern California to get at least its share of political plums.

One plum reportedly about to fall to our southern brethren is a fourth seat on the seven-member California Highway Commission. The term of Abraham Kofman of Alameda expires Jan. 15, and strong pressure is being brought on the governor's office to replace him with a southerner.

Many in the North Coast counties, however, want to return to the "tradition" that one of the members be from the Redwood Empire. The tradition was established by Gov. Culbert L. Olson and continued by Governors Warren and Knight, but Governor Brown broke the tradition in his second term.

DAN BOWERMAN, general manager of the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat, wrote the governor's appointments secretary on Dec. 15, observing that the tradition "probably was only a matter of parochial pride." People from the Oregon border to the Golden Gate, nevertheless,

"would be highly appreciative if the tradition was resumed," Bowerman wrote Paul Haerle, formerly of Marin.

The trouble, however, is that there are so many more persons south of the Tehachapis who would be pleased by appointment of another Southern Californian.

Bowerman recommended the appointment go to Don Emerson, Lake County resort owner and a former president of the Redwood Empire Association.

Before the Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" edict, Northern California managed to dominate the state government — but that's ancient political history even though it was only yesterday.

Northern Californians seem to concede that the new balance of political power is fair — but in their hearts they wish trees could vote.

THE MARIN COUNTY Republican Central Committee — full of Christmas cheer and jocularity — is thinking of attaching the assets of the Marin County Democratic Central Committee to settle a two-year-old unpaid bill.

The Democrats, it seems, owe the Republicans about $75 for voter rolls and precinct maps sold to the two committees by the county clerk's office. How the Republicans happened to pick up the tab for both committees is a mystery.

The real mystery, however, is how the Democrats would be able to pay the bill — since they are about $2,000 in debt.

It's easy to tell which party was the winner.

The funds will aid materially in providing needed services for the retarded in Marin County. And all of us in MARC are standing a little taller because of Bernard Hoffman.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A woman strode into the office of a Park Avenue psychiatrist the other day with a live bird, marked black and orange, firmly tucked under her arm. "What's troubling you?" asked the psychiatrist. "It isn't I," explained the woman. "It's my husband here. He thinks he's a mynah bird."

Thomas A. Edison complained to his friend Harvey Firestone one day that his visitors were literally smoking him out of house and home. "They invade my office," he grumbled, "and help themselves to my expensive, pure Havana cigars. They just scoop them up by the handful!" "Lock them up," suggested Firestone. "I never can remember to do it," sighed Edison. "One time, however, my secretary, Johnson, came to my rescue. He had a cigar-maker he knew make me up a couple of hundred consisting of nothing but cabbage leaves wrapped in brown paper. I approved the idea — but the cigars never came, so I asked Johnson about it one day when I noticed my Havana's disappearing again.

"Johnson called the cigar-maker who insisted, 'I sent them to you a full month ago — in a large white carton.' "Good heavens," exploded Edison when this information was conveyed to him. "I took that carton with me to California last month — and smoked every one of those damned cigars myself!"

They couldn't quite bring themselves to admit they were prejudiced, so they used all sorts of excuses. They said Negroes were getting too militant, or they got upset about slogans like "Black Power." Finally, instead of seeing the riots as desperate explosions of anger at intolerable living conditions, they made riots their excuse for their prejudices.

I REMEMBER meeting one fellow recently who told me

No Tax Increase

Before Next April 1

By PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Taxpayers are going to receive a belated Christmas gift from Congress in 1968.

Despite President Johnson's urgent appeal for immediate action next year on his 10 per cent surtax proposal, no income tax increase will go into effect before April 1, and maybe not even then.

Several compelling reasons are behind this certainty.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., powerful chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, and Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, have privately agreed to delay further hearings on the President's revised tax boost-spending cut package.

Largely unnoticed by the press, the suggestion was made by Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr., while being quizzed by Chairman Mills, as follows:

Mills: "How long do you think it would be before the tax increase would take effect on our adverse balance of payments?"

Martin: "In terms of psychology and confidence, I think the passage of the tax bill and the President's program would have immediate effect. But this would not cure the patient. You might have to have another move later."

After the hearing Mills asked Martin if he thought a second tax increase might be requested by the administration in 1968.

"No," replied Martin.

"Probably in 1969."

NEW DEMOCRATIC STAR — Betty Furness, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, is becoming the Johnson Administration's number one political campaigner.

Since being sworn in last May for her $26,000-a-year White House job, Miss Furness has delivered more speeches than any other administration official. Some weeks she has delivered as many as five.

From President Johnson's viewpoint, the 51-year-old former TV personality has been such a smash hit on the road that he plans to keep her on the campaign trail throughout most of 1968.

TO BE EQUAL

Unfinished Church True Symbol Of Situation

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

To me, the symbol of this Christmas is the uncompleted Cathedral Church of St. John Divine in New York City. Construction work on the church has been stopped by Episcopal Bishop Horace W. B. Donegan. Scaffolding will circle the uncompleted tower, remaining as a symbol of the anguish of the slums.

The cathedral, Bishop Donegan said, "shall be the prophetic symbol that our society is still as rough-hewn, ragged, broken and incomplete as the building itself."

His eloquent words could not be more true. We celebrate Christmas and its message of love and brotherhood, but does our society really believe its message? The symbols, the words, and the rites are there, but the meaning of peace and brotherhood is not.

Sure, this is a season of rejoicing and good cheer, but it should also be a time when men look deep into their hearts and examine their true feelings and their actions. For if the events of the past year proved anything, they showed that too many people harbor feelings of racism and bigotry.

PEOPLE WHO USED to think they were unprejudiced now have to be more honest with themselves. It was easy for them when the civil rights struggle was centered in the South, who couldn't support a fight against the racist actions of some Deep South sheriffs?

But now the battle has moved north, and it is about basic things like housing and education and jobs. And these same people who thought themselves so right-thinking, suddenly panic when integration means a Negro family next door.

Millions of Americans will mouth the words "peace on earth, good will to all mankind," and they will bend their heads in prayer for a more just world. But I hope they will also take time to examine their actions. I think that many will find that their moral state is as incomplete as the church in New York which stands as the living symbol that the work we must do to achieve true democracy is unfinished.

ROADS TO BETHLEHEM

The Israelis occupied Bethlehem in the June war and are making it easier for pilgrims to visit the Biblical city. This Christmas all roads lead to Bethlehem and some 16,000 persons are expected to be there for midnight Mass Dec. 24.

NEW STAR RISING OVER BETHLEHEM

Israel Goes All Out To Make Christmas Memorable In Historic Little Village

BETHLEHEM, ISRAEL-HELD JORDAN (AP) — A new star will hang over Bethlehem this Christmas — the Star of David.

And like the glowing star which lingered over this sleepy town nearly 2,000 years ago, it is drawing pilgrims to the place where Christ was born.

The Israelis occupied Bethlehem in the June war and tore down all the obstacles which once tainted Christmas with hostility and suspicion for so many pilgrims from all over the world.

For 19 years those who crossed from Israel underwent close scrutiny from Jordanian border officials. Last year only 7,000 crossed. This Christmas, some 16,000 are expected to flock to the Biblical city for the famous midnight Mass on Christmas Eve.

In Jerusalem, where they once filed through the Mandelbaum Gate checkpost across the armistice line dividing the Holy City, they will now drive past.

Christians crossing from Israel had to have at least two documents — their passport and a special entry visa issued by the Israelis.

The Jordanians refused to allow anyone through if they had an Israeli-stamped passport, and as often as not demanded proof the pilgrim was not Jewish.

But even then the harried pilgrim's troubles were not over. Visitors who crossed from Israel were not allowed to return that way. So they had to get entry visas for Jordan too, so they could get home.

If they came to Bethlehem from Amman or other Arab cities, however, pilgrims could leave through Israel if they stayed in Jordan for at least 72 hours.

This year, all roads lead to Bethlehem. From Nazareth, below the hills of Galilee, the large Catholic Arab community can top 50 miles of its pilgrimage route by going direct through the occupied West Bank.

Several hundred more Christian Arabs are expected to cross the Allenby Bridge under a special Christmas program. Others will come south from Lebanon through the Rosh Hanikra border post.

Plane loads of Christians from all over the world will drive through the mountains to Jerusalem, where hotels in the Arab sector report solid book-

What's Ahead For Reagan In 1968?

By BILL BOYARSKY

SACRAMENTO (AP) — For Gov. Ronald Reagan, 1968 could be the year of the presidency—or of 12 months of frustration in the State Capitol.

Former Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who lost to Republican Reagan by almost a million votes in 1966, says "the erosion has started to set in."

Reagan's chief Democratic adversary, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh of Los Angeles, agrees, but adds, "despite the fact that he is losing out here, he is not doing too badly nationally."

During his first year in office, drawing to a close this week, Reagan has dug a beachhead for his "Creative Society" program and become a prominent figure on the national political scene.

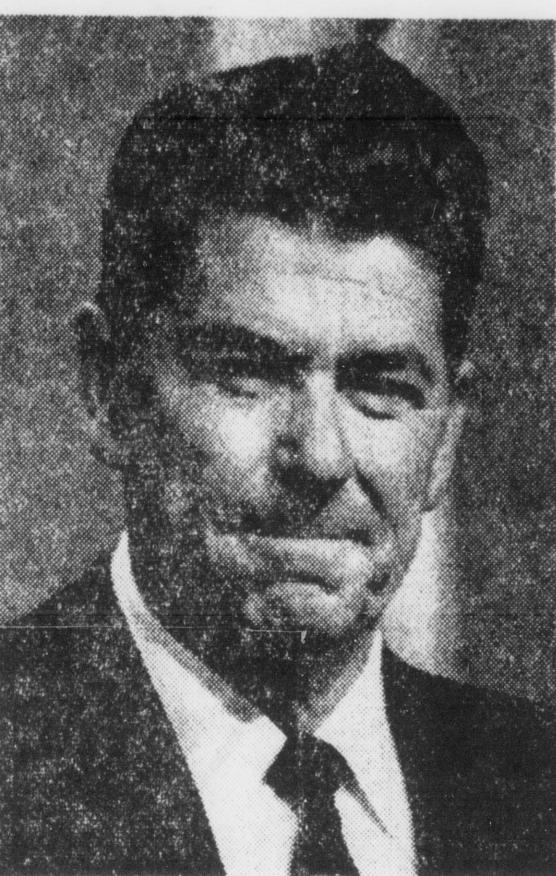

Officially not a candidate, Reagan will go to the Republican National Convention in the summer as California's favorite son, and probably the favorite of some delegates from other states.

His chance of winning the nomination likely depends on inheriting conservative support if Richard M. Nixon's campaign collapses.

Win or lose, the prospect of competition for national office is a glittering one for the former actor who is completing his first year as governor of the nation's most populous state.

He has made friends in the South, the Midwest and the East with his fiery speeches. He has proved to the nation what Californians already knew—he's a champion crowd pleaser and fund raiser whose conservative message of government economy, morality and law and order strikes a responsive chord throughout the United States.

Prospects are not so bright at home. Democrats still control the Assembly 42-38. The Senate is a friendlier place for Reagan, with a 20-30 partisan split and Republican Lt.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN AT TERM'S BEGINNING
His first crises were the budget and college tuition

Gov. Robert H. Finch casting the deciding vote in the case of a tie.

Democrats claimed a victory this year when they refused Reagan permission to cut back the state's Medi-Cal program of medical assistance to the poor.

In Sacramento, he spends days in his office and even has lunch brought from a nearby restaurant. But he is frequently away from the Capitol, either on political trips to other states or for visits to Southern California, where the family home is located in Los Angeles.

"We think it's hurt him politically," Unruh said of the Medi-Cal vote. "The fact is we were able to face him eyeball to eyeball."

Reagan, however, terms this political interference by the Democrats, and takes his case directly to the people on special televised reports. Republicans are behind him and say his popularity is high.

After a year in office, the governor's thick hair is still without a trace of grey and he walks with the springy step of a man younger than his 56 years. He had two attacks of the flu and a bladder stone operation in the past year, but his aides report his health is good.

In Sacramento, he spends days in his office and even has lunch brought from a nearby restaurant. But he is frequently away from the Capitol, either on political trips to other states or for visits to Southern California, where the family home is located in Los Angeles.

Among his economy targets: the same ones that caused so much controversy in 1967, higher education and welfare. He also promised to press for increased fees at the University of California and the state colleges, a substitute for his defeated tuition plan.

The talk was similar to the message he gave when he took office: "We are going to cut, squeeze and trim until we've reduced the cost of government."

The month that followed that speech in January, 1967, will be remembered for years as Reagan sought to carry out his campaign promise of economy.

He was out of state during three major events in the latter part of this year. They were the final days of the special legislative session: the violent antidraft riot in Oakland and student demonstrations at San Francisco State College and California State College at Los Angeles. He cut short a trip east to attend a special state college trustees meeting on the demonstrations.

Now, he is at work preparing his 1968 program, and predicting another year of economy.

"Unfortunately, the fiscal picture is still grim," he said in a televised summary of his first year in office Sunday night.

Among his economy targets: the same ones that caused so much controversy in 1967, higher education and welfare. He also promised to press for increased fees at the University of California and the state colleges, a substitute for his defeated tuition plan.

The talk was similar to the message he gave when he took office: "We are going to cut, squeeze and trim until we've reduced the cost of government."

The month that followed that speech in January, 1967, will be remembered for years as Reagan sought to carry out his campaign promise of economy.

He ordered all department heads to cut the proposed budgets by 10 per cent, including the University of California and state colleges. He proposed higher education tuition. Out of state travel by employees was limited. The hiring of new state workers was frozen.

Clark Kerr was fired by the regents as the president of the University of California, and Reagan voted with the majority. He had criticized Kerr in his campaign for his handling of student disorders on the Berkeley campus.

Reagan confronted some 10,000 demonstrators who had marched to the Capitol steps in protest against his higher education policies — and defended himself over the boozing and the hissing of the crowd.

In later months, there was more controversy. Reagan asked the 160,000 state employees to work on the Lincoln and Washington birthday holidays, and most refused.

He proposed that 3,700 jobs be eliminated from the state mental hospitals on the grounds that the number of patients had declined sharply over the past years and the institutions now were overstaffed. After that, a recall-Reagan petition was circulated, but it fell far short of the needed signatures.

Despite all the furor, he won some major victories in his first year.

While his first $4.6 billion economy budget was eventually replaced by a record $5.09 billion spending program and his 10 per cent cuts fell short of the mark, Reagan managed to slow down the rise in government spending. The rate of increase was lower than it had been under Brown.

And he displayed political skill in pushing through a tax increase that will raise $943.3 million this year and more than $1 billion next year.

"The governor's operation can hardly be termed citizen politician any more," commented Unruh.

Reagan still faces the possibility of political repercussions from his tax increase. Most Californians will get their higher income tax bills April 15. They have already been tapped for more sales, cigarette, liquor and business taxes.

He predicted that concern with winning the Presidential nomination will prevent Reagan from presenting a full scale legislative program, although the governor has already announced plans for a major tax reform in addition to trying to revive many of his defeated 1967 bills.

If Reagan doesn't get the nomination, the legislator said, "he'll probably come back and be a pretty good governor."

RAPS REAGAN Brown's Opinion: A Blundering Year

Independent-Journal, Saturday, Dec. 23, 1967 11

EDMUND G. BROWN
A blistering attack

Brown said "one of his worst mistakes" was cutting $15 million from the state mental hygiene department's budget, money added by Democrats in the legislature.

"This is the most shocking instance of heartlessness I've ever seen," Brown said. "California is rich enough to take care of its unfortunately mentally ill. I predict the people will rise up against him."

Brown had other comments on what he would have done differently had he won reelection:

"There is only one way to handle Medi-Cal, and that is to put strict controls on doctor and hospital fees. Reagan took the controls off and he is in trouble."

"I would take welfare out of the hands of the counties and put it in the hands of the state. Tremendous savings in duplicate services could be made this way."

"We have too many boards and administrators in all branches of the government. I would have merged them, for more efficient, economical services to the people of the state."

Speaking for the court, Justice William O. Douglas found that "precision and clarity" were not present in Maryland's Ober Law.

"Rather we find an overbreadth that makes possible oppressive or capricious application as regimes change," he said.

Since 1960 the court has struck down loyalty legislation in Florida, Washington State, Arizona and New York. It has not upheld such a law since 1952, when New York's Ober Law survived by a 6 to 3 vote. Even the New York program, since revised, was found unconstitutional last term.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has sponsored many attacks on loyalty oaths. Apart from points of law, the ACLU feels "it is unfortunate to a democracy to require its citizens to disclaim any belief or association." The organization considers such oaths an affront to the dignity of the individual and is ineffective as a safeguard against totalitarian activity.

Besides victories in the U.S. Supreme Court, the ACLU has won state court battles in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Kansas.

Tribunal Tightening Oath Straightjacket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court is tightening the straitjacket it has been fashioning for state loyalty oaths designed to keep subversives out of government and particularly out of schools and colleges.

Any law is unconstitutional if a person or ordinary intelligence would not know by its language where to draw the line between what is permissible and what is not. An allegation of vagueness is particularly important where free speech is concerned.

Speaking for the court, Justice William O. Douglas found that "precision and clarity" were not present in Maryland's Ober Law.

"Rather we find an overbreadth that makes possible oppressive or capricious application as regimes change," he said.

Even a positive oath apparently cannot be made a loyalty test. This means an individual cannot be held subject to prosecution for perjury if it turns out he signed an oath while belonging to a "subversive" organization.

Beginning in the late 1940s, many state legislatures passed laws describing subversive organizations and requiring teachers and other public employees to disclaim membership in them. The idea was to make the ordinary, positive oath more specific.

But the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech and association turned out to be a massive stumbling block.

Maryland, whose oath was struck down by the court on Nov. 6, attempted to put its disclaimer in the simplest language. The signer merely had to swear that he was not "a person who is engaged in one way or another in the attempt to overthrow the government

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

For 18 days and 2 hours the heart of a young woman killed in a traffic accident beat strongly in the chest of a 55-year-old grocer at Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town, South Africa.

But shortly after 7 a.m. Thursday Lithuanian refugee Louis Washkansky died. So ended history's first attempt at a great medical advance—the first transplanting of a human heart.

But to the end the transplanted heart beat vigorously, holding his blood pressure at normal. Medical men predicted the surgical techniques would yet be perfected. They said the Washkansky case had advanced medicine toward the goal.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Victoria, Australia: Australian prime minister Harold Holt disappeared while swimming at a beach near Victoria. Searchers failed to locate his body. Late in the week President Johnson flew to Australia for memorial services.

Washington: In a television interview President Johnson linked the presidential peace candidacy of Democratic Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy to the political ambitions of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Saigon: A break in monsoon weather allowed the stepping up of American air attacks against North Vietnam. The White House relaxed restrictions permitting pilots to fly the buffer strip along the Chinese border.

Rome: Greek King Constantine from his exile in Rome asked the military junta for a full and complete timetable for restoration of parliamentary democracy.

Point Pleasant, W. Va.: Crews continue efforts to recover bodies of victims killed when a heavily-traveled bridge collapsed into the Ohio River. The death toll was estimated at about 80.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history: In 1783, George Washington resigned his Army commission and returned to his estate at Mount Vernon.

In 1928, a permanent coast-to-coast radio network was established (by NBC).

In 1948, ex-premier Hideki Tojo of Japan and six other war leaders were hanged in Tokyo on orders of an Allied war crimes commission.

In 1953, former Russian secret police Chief Lavrenti Beria was executed.

Synanon Dominates Hills Above Marshall

Synanon Foundation at Marshall, with almost 90 persons residing in the old Marconi Trans-Pacific network buildings, is on hills overlooking the Pacific. Shoreline Highway 1 runs along the edge of the water in this view of northwest Marin, showing its hills and valleys. Synanon, the organization aimed at stopping drug addiction of its members, bought the 65-acre Marconi site three years ago. Administration offices are in the large, double-gabled building in the center of the photo. The organization plans a 10-year $3.5 million program of construction, with a "town hall" now under construction (not shown in photo, which was taken in the spring).

Much of the construction work is being done by Synanon residents with donated materials and construction equipment. The 700-seat assembly hall, a kitchen and eight conference rooms, residential units, library, lecture halls and amphitheater are to be built for what backers hope will be a Synanon community of 1,000 to 1,500 persons. Just to the north, above Synanon in the photo, the Marshall-Petaluma Road is hidden in a valley. Boats are anchored at Blake's Landing and, above it, Nick's Cove. Shoreline Highway heads inland for a reach near Keyes Creek in the upper portion of the picture. (Photo by Ed Brady of Aero Photographers)

Eyes On Texas In Battles For Pro Grid Titles

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Eyes of Texas figure to get a heavy workout tonight and tomorrow as Houston and Dallas shoot for Eastern supremacy in pro football's emotion-charged Super Bowl countdown.

Houston's title-thirsty Oilers can clinch the Eastern Division crown in the American Football League tonight at Miami by beating or tying the improved Dolphins. If the Oilers stumble, the New York Jets can force an Eastern playoff next week by getting past San Diego tomorrow on the West Coast.

The Oakland Raiders, who pocketed the Western Division title three weeks ago, will entertain the Eastern Survivor in the AFL championship game either next Sunday, if there is no Jets-Oilers playoff, or the following week.

At Dallas tomorrow, the Cowboys tackle the Cleveland Browns for the Eastern Conference berth in the National Football League championship game next week. The Eastern champs will meet the winner of today's Western Conference title showdown between Los Angeles and Green Bay.

At the end of the playoff trail is the rich AFL-NFL Super Bowl clash Jan. 14 at Miami.

Wally Lemm's Houston club, which finished in a last-place tie with Miami in the AFL Eastern race a year ago, has rebounded behind a tough defense, the running of Hoyle Granger and the field leadership of quarterback Pete Beathard, acquired from Kansas City in mid-season.

The Oilers have won four of their last five games—including a 17-14 squeeze over Miami at home—in their drive to capture the Eastern pennant for the first time since 1963.

However, the young Dolphins also have been on the upswing, taking three of their last four starts behind the rookie passing combination of Bob Griese and Jack Clancy.

Granger, with 1,034 rushing yards, has an outside chance of overtaking AFL leader Jim Nance of Boston, who finished with 1,216. Griese has thrown 98 straight passes without an interception—30 short of the league mark set six years ago by Boston's Butch Songin. Unless Miami repulses the Oiler title thrust, the Jets will merely run through the motions at San Diego tomorrow as will the Raiders and Buffalo Bills in their regular season finale at Oakland.

If New York still has a life, however, quarterback Joe Namath will shoot the works for the Jets despite a broken cheecbone suffered in last Sunday's 38-29 loss to Oakland.

Namath will be throwing to George Sauer and Don Maynard, the AFL's 1-2 pass receivers, as the Jets seek to end a three-game losing string and a six-year winless skein at San Diego.

Tomorrow's NFL collision at Dallas pairs two clubs who have been dominant in the Eastern Conference for the past four years. The Cowboys won the Capitol Division crown this season after finishing first in the East in 1966. The Browns, who won the Eastern title in 1964 and 1965, represent the Century Division this time around.

The game pits two brilliant but battered quarterbacks—Frank Ryan of the Browns and Don Meredith of Dallas—against each other.

Ryan was held out of the Browns' regular season finale against Philadelphia last week with a bruised left forearm but has been sharp in practice all this week. The graying veteran also has weathered ankle, shoulder and forearm ailments —still has fired 20 touchdown passes.

Meredith, who missed all or part of four games earlier in the year with injuries, sat out the second half of the Cowboys' game against San Francisco last week with a strained knee.

The Browns have the NFL's top running combination in Leroy Kelly, the rushing champion with 1,205 yards, and Ernie Green. But Dallas' Doomsday Defense, led by towering Bob Lilly and George Andrie, held the Cleveland ground game to a net of minus-five yards in a 21-14 season-opening conquest of the Browns.

Warriors, Sonics Collide

OAKLAND (UPI)—Seattle and San Francisco, buoyed by hard-fought home victories last night, open a weekend series tonight at the Oakland Arena.

The same clubs tangle tomorrow afternoon at Seattle, Wash., in the season's first nationally televised game in the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors were forced to come from behind by eight points in the third quarter and seven in the fourth period before beating the San Diego Rockets 103-97. Seattle, behind the 31-point performance of rookie Al Tucker, downed the New York Knicks 120-108.

Down 94-87 in the last quarter, the Warriors went on a 14-4 spree to pull away from the last-place Rockets in the game's waning minutes. Fred Hetzel hit 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter to help San Francisco forge ahead.

Warrior guard Al Attles stole the ball five times in the fourth period and was a demon on defense to spark the Warrior comeback. Rudy LaRussa meshed 26 to pace the Warriors and center Nate Thurmond contributed 22.

John Block led the Rockets with 24.

The win moved San Francisco to within two games of idle St. Louis which is leading the NBA's Western Division.

Dick Barnett led the Knicks with 20 points and Walt Bellamy added 18.

A Christmas Message To Our Readers

When Does The Day We All Await Really Come?

By REV. CALVIN G. FRISCH

In the familiar play, "Waiting for Godot," there is, at center stage, a forlorn-looking character, leaning against a lamppost, waiting. The rest of the stage is empty.

Most of the attention throughout the play is focused on this central character who does little else but wait. Very little happens in this play. Now and again, someone comes to converse a bit, and leaves. The man at center stage still waits. Impatience mounts; the man still waits — and Godot (is it God?) never comes.

TRANSLATE this scene onto the stage of your and my "world" of Marin. We find ourselves at center stage, for who of us will admit that his world does not revolve around himself?

In place of the desolation of the rest of the stage in "Godot," there are multitudinous attractions and distractions to fill the scene with frantic activity and motion. Our stage is nowhere barren, for we are the affluent society. Our landscape is bursting with beauty, aswirl in activity, everywhere pregnant, glittering with the tinsel and lights of the Christmas season. The stage appears to be full. What could we possibly be waiting for?

We are waiting for Christmas to come.

WHEN WILL it come? Will it come at the magic stroke of midnight as we wait by the fireplate for the jolly round face of Santa with his bulging sack of secular anesthetics to make us feel good for awhile? That is a lot of fun!

Or will we still be waiting after we have dug through the bag and thrown away the ribbons?

Will Christmas come when we flip the switch backstage and watch the Christmas tree blossom into color, and see the light sparkle in the eyes of our children as they watch with glee? That is a precious sight!

Will Christmas come when we open that Christmas card from a friend far away, and feel the warmth of love that comes through that paper expression? We do love such moments!

Will Christmas come when we gather around the table with our loved ones, to carve the traditional turkey, so beautifully set amidst the bright red cranberry sauce and mince pies that a kind Creator has made so readily available to our reach? Count me in on this one, for sure!

OR WILL WE still be waiting, while we look for the Alka-

Seltzer . . . and a good soft pillow?

Will Christmas have come before the stage is cleared to make way for the new play entitled "1968"?

I think we know, don't we, when Christmas has come? Isn't it really a matter of knowing the meaning of Christmas?

Let's go back again to our play and the character at center stage. Who is that fellow leaning on the lamppost, waiting? Isn't he Mr., or Mrs. or Miss Average Citizen, surrounded by his own egocentricity, the little pinpoint around which all creation must revolve, and caught up in whatever emotional state determines his true attitude toward his whole environment? Isn't there to be found the attitude made up of jealousy and hate, fear and anxiety, distrust and suspicion, and the gnawing sense of aloneness in a great big universe of which we must be a part but to which we don't really belong?

WHAT DOES THIS do to our deep, true self, the part that is called personality or the soul, the spiritual being, the real person?

It not only keeps our spiritual self from becoming at one with other persons; it also bars entrance into our consciousness to our Creator. And yet we cannot bar Him, for He is forever a part of us, the center wherein we have our true being.

How are we to overcome the self-centeredness which denies us so much that we have the right to expect from life? Only when we allow God to become central in our lives! — the One Who is behind every slice of bread, every turkey leg and cranberry seed, and Who wants to use His boundless power to continually create new life in us. Repeated God-centering of our lives breaks down the fences which keep God out, and replaces them with faith, hope, love, acceptance, trust, and responsible conduct. God has not only told us this in words, but through the Person of Jesus Christ. God sent Jesus to the Earth so that men might know what God is like. Christ "reflects the glory of God and bears the very stamp of His nature" (Hebrews 1:3).

REV. CALVIN G. FRISCH, pastor of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Tiburon, is the author of this year's Christmas message to the readers of the Independent Journal's Marin Magazine, a tradition with this weekend supplement. Pastor Frisch is a graduate of Texas Lutheran College and

HE CAME INTO our world, that we might live through Him.

He frees us from ourselves and our sins, so we can really love and live, abundantly and forever! When our lives are right with Him, they're right, not by our own fallible notions, but by God's infallible standards.

Robert Luccock describes Christmas as "God's love leaping out of the darkness like a long-awaited comet from out of the void . . . and across all the thousands and thousands of miles of earth, the thousands of years of time, that leaping spark has kindled a great light for the people who walked in darkness." And that's exactly where Christmas comes in.

The One Whom Christmas is all about belongs in the center of the stage, in the very center of our lives, the object of our affections, to be adored and worshipped profoundly. Then life begins to take shape, repentance ushers in forgiveness, and our lives reflect the image of God that transforms our relationships in every phase of human conduct.

In Reader's Digest (June '54) is an article recommended by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, entitled "The Central Character of the Ages":

"THERE IS A fascination about Jesus Christ that we find in no other person who has ever lived . . . When He walked the earth, men were awed by His presence, were drawn to Him by an indescribable power. After 19 centuries, Jesus is still the disturbing, surprising, fascinating Master of men. His teachings have exerted a greater influence upon the thought and life of the Western world than the words of all other teachers combined . . . Our calendar is dated backward and forward from Him. Whether we stand in an art gallery or visit a great library, or listen to the masterworks of music, we realize, indeed, that He is the central character of the centuries . . ."

It is He, Who came at Christmas, Who said: "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." (John 10:10 RSV Bible) To this the Holy Scriptures testify: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16 RSV Bible).

WHEN HE IS invited into our lives, that's when Christmas really comes! That's something to celebrate, with trees and lights, gifts and love, and worship, and all of life! That's something to celebrate! This is the marvelous heritage of Christmas, conveyed through the ages by the Church.

That's what Christmas is all about! Remember?

Christmas At St. Vincent's

The Secret Is Making The Boys Feel At Home

By DON KEOWN

Of the more than 180 boys living at St. Vincent's School north of San Rafael, all but a few are able to go home to spend their Christmases with their families.

After the 1966 holidays, one youngster announced that he had just enjoyed "the best Christmas I ever had."

One of the boys fortunate enough to spend that holiday with his family?

Not at all. He was one of the 15 or 20 who had remained at St. Vincent's throughout the holiday period.

SELDOM DO these youngsters experience envy of their schoolmates or feel disappointment at their own inability to pay their families the traditional Christmas visits.

"The secret," says Fr. James P. Keane, director of St. Vincent's School, "is in making the boys feel that St. Vincent's is really their home."

"And," he continues "it is not something that you can accomplish with splurges of activity at holiday time. It is something you have to work at the year around."

ST. VINCENT'S does, however, maintain a busy schedule of special Christmas activities that is enjoyed by all the boys until the departures for home begin, and then by those lads who remain behind to spend their Dec. 25 at the school.

The 1967 festivities began earlier this week when the Godfathers Club conducted its traditional party for the boys while St. Vincent's population was still at its fullest.

The Godfathers consist of public-spirited Bay Area men, mostly Marin and San Francisco residents, who work voluntarily as fund-raisers and in other capacities for the good of the school which accommodates boys, first grade through high school, who for various reasons cannot live at home.

The Godfathers bring with them their families, and presents for all the boys. An established part of the entertainment is the music provided by a small combo led by one of the Godfathers, Roy Lippi of Oakland.

At St. Vincent's, Roy Lippi is held in as much esteem by the young music-lovers as the Beatles or any of the other internationally-known rock groups.

ON THE Wednesday night before Christmas, the first of two special holiday feasts is served, featuring turkey and trimmings — "all that you can eat."

On Thursday some of the boys begin to leave for their homes.

Departures continue into Christmas morning.

Midnight mass in the St. Vincent's Chapel for the remaining boys and staff is a Christmas Eve tradition. Father Keane will be the celebrator tomorrow night.

Afterwards, the boys will enjoy hot chocolate, cookies and other treats before retiring.

CHRISTMAS MORNING breakfast is at 9 a.m. And each of the boys remaining at the school is entitled to order what he wants. The cooks will fulfill his orders exactly.

It's a practice that is also followed on Thanksgiving morning. "On those two holidays, the boys are kings for a day," says Father Keane.

After that huge breakfast, the boys gather around the big, decorated tree in the dining room where special gifts for the boys remaining at the school have been provided by St. Vincent's.

THERE WILL be toys, games and sports equipment for the smaller boys, clothing and money for the older ones.

"They don't always approve of our taste," Father Keane smiles. "But we try our best."

The presents have been colorfully wrapped by the Sisters at St. Vincent's.

There follows a period for the boys to become acquainted with their new acquisitions.

THE BIG Christmas Day dinner, again turkey with all the trimmings prepared under the direction of head chef Jack Houpe, retired after 22 years experience as an Army cook, is served at noon. On this day, and on Thanksgiving, the staff joins the boys at the dinner table.

Following the feast, the boys enjoy a group recreation of their choice — usually a movie, but sometimes bowling.

In the evening, upon their return to the school, there will be a "pick-me-up" supper, after which the boys will gather around the roaring fireplaces in their dormitories to watch the Christmas programs on the television, or to sing carols.

THE DAYS that follow are relaxed vacation days for St. Vincent's boys with no classes, just as they are for other youngsters attending public or parochial schools.

By Jan. 3, all the boys will have returned to the school, ready to resume the normal routine, but taking with them pleasant memories of a few days spent with their loved ones, or of the warm Christmas spirit and fun they enjoyed at St. Vincent's.

"We try our best to make Christmas meaningful and merry for the boys unable to visit their families," says Father

Keane, "and when we hear one of them tell a classmate about the fun or food or the religious service he missed, we know we have succeeded."

SUCCESS IS reflected, too, when St. Vincent's boys generally indicate a preference for spending Christmas at the school, rather than in the homes who offer them their hospitality.

"We appreciate the generous motives that cause many families to call us each year and invite one or more boys to spend Christmas with them," Father Keane says. "But the truth is that the boys feel more comfortable in the surroundings and with the people to which they are accustomed."

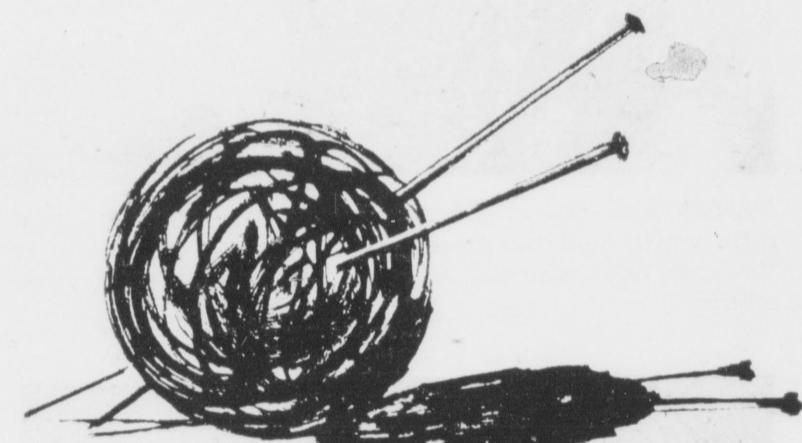

"This is all the more true on Christmas."

ATTRACTIVE, cheerful living areas that create a homey feeling among the boys are part of the St. Vincent's approach, Father Keane says.

So is the friendly, relaxed relationship that exists between the staff and students.

The school benefits, too, its that the boys develop during the holidays and carry with them through the year ahead.

"WE LIKE TO think that the Christmas spirit is more than just a seasonal thing at St. Vincent's — that it is typical, rather than atypical," he says.

But Father Keane admits that this feeling is at its warmest and its brightest during these special, magic days when otherwise homeless boys have reaffirmed for them the knowledge that there is a place to which they belong — St. Vincent's. And that St. Vincent's is more than just a school or institution.

Christmas In Vietnam Remembered

The torrential rain slammed hard into the vast stretches of white earth.

Beyond the barbed-wire fence, on the blackest of nights, a strange, mysterious silence hung over the dark forest.

Sgt. Keith T. Ribbentrop, from St. Paul, Minn., scanned the slushy terrain for signs of intruders. Before continuing his walk around the compound, he gave his sentry dog a gentle pat.

"JUST LIKE home for Christmas," he said softly to the German shepherd. The dog looked up at his master and gave him an understanding whine.

But it wasn't St. Paul. And the sergeant wasn't walking in snow. It was the white sand of Vietnam. He was on night guard duty at Phu Cat Air Base, right in the middle of Viet Cong territory.

While his loved ones were home preparing to enjoy the traditional festivities of Christmas, 1966, he was waiting for an imminent enemy assault and a possible rendezvous with death.

THE SERGEANT, now, a year later, a sentry dog handler at Hamilton Air Force Base, remembers he completed last year's Christmas night without incident. He did admit there were a few anxious moments when he heard strange noises in the nearby jungle.

"Now you know why I am looking forward to this year's Christmas," he confided. "You never know how good something is until you've been away. I think this is going to be the best holiday season ever."

Keith, a tall, straight-shouldered young man of German ancestry isn't the only one at Hamilton Air Force Base who is looking forward to Christmas, 1967, with special interest.

SEVERAL hundred other men at the Air Defense Command base also had last Christmas marred with the lonely, dangerous and sweaty business of war.

Although a truce in Vietnam had gone into effect several days earlier, officers and airmen still worked around the clock, on the alert for possible "treaty" violations.

Some, like 1st Lt. Roger J. Strasswimmer of New York City, were on rest leave in Bangkok, Thailand.

The fighter-interceptor pilot, assigned with the 84th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Hamilton, remembers he had completed 58 missions over North Vietnam.

NOW MARRIED, the lieutenant would complete his Thailand tour with 100 missions over North Vietnam. He would also be credited with downing an enemy MIG 21.

"Everywhere I went," he recalled, "I thought of home. At the time I wasn't married and usually spent Christmas with my nephews in Yorktown, N.Y."

"Most of all, on that rainy December 25th, I thought of the snow and the traditional Christmas dinner with Sis and her family."

Another 84th Fighter Interceptor Squadron flyer had another version of Christmas, 1966, in Southeast Asia.

CAPT. ROBERT W. Cummings of Duluth, Minn., said he was flying a reconnaissance mission over Vietnam on the birthday of Christ.

He said he was so busy preparing for the flight from Tan Son Nhut, near Saigon, that he didn't have time to think of Christmas, his wife and two little girls.

This Christmas he will be on alert duty with the 84th at snow and wind swept Siskiyou County Airport in Northern California.

Sgt. Duane Hackney is a pararescue specialist assigned with the 41st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron at Hamilton. This Christmas he plans to attend the family's annual reunion in Flint, Mich.

"ON CHRISTMAS Day Dad and I used to go out in the snow and try out new fishing equipment or a new rifle," he recalled. "Last year in Vietnam, I sure missed this."

Christmas, 1966, was a busy time for the young sergeant. He was being lowered in the jungles of North Vietnam from a helicopter to search for a downed pilot.

"After I got back to Da Nang Air Base (Vietnam) we started to have a little Christmas party. But, we had to cut this short to go on some more missions."

SERGEANT HACKNEY is the only living enlisted man in the Air Force to have won the nation's second highest decoration for valor, the Air Force Cross.

S/Sgt. Lee M. Campbell of El Cajon, Calif., is a crack aircraft engine mechanic at Hamilton Air Force Base. He makes sure that the personal aircraft of Maj. Gen. Carroll W. McColpin, Fourth Air Force commander, is in top shape.

In Vietnam he was crew chief of a twin engine transport stationed at Tan Son Nhut.

"TO ME LAST Christmas was just another working day," he said. "Most of the men in our squadron enjoyed a fine holiday meal with all the trimmings."

He paused momentarily and added, "I guess that was the only long break we had that day. Some of the guys, including myself, thought nothing of a 16-hour work day.

"Over there you had to put in long hours to keep the planes flying."

LIKE ALL OF America's fighting men in Southeast Asia, the five missed the things we take for granted: the sound of a train, ice cubes, current hometown newspapers, whole milk, children opening packages on Christmas morning, family reunions, a snow covered lawn, swapping jokes with a favorite uncle, the loving touch of a wife and the hug of an infant daughter.

Among their gift parcels were photographs of their families, cookies, underwear, powdered chocolate beverages and special letters all ending with "We miss you."

Christmas, 1967, will mean many things to many people. For Captain Cummings, Lieutenant Strasswimmer, Sergeants Campbell, Ribbentrop and Hackney, it is symbolic of all that is good in life. Most important, they are alive to pray for "Peace on earth, goodwill toward men."

THESE THREE pararescue men from the 41st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base say a prayer for their buddies who will be going on rescue and recovery missions in Vietnam this Christmas. Sgt. Duane Hackney of Flint, Mich., left, and S/Sgt. John F. Tobey of Gilbertsville, N. Y., were searching for missing pilots in North Vietnam last Christmas. S/Sgt. Dennis J. Kraft, center, from Minot, N. D., spent Christmas in Vietnam in 1965. All three pararescue men have earned the Silver Star. Sergeant Hackney is the only living enlisted man to wear the Air Force Cross, the nation's second highest decoration for extraordinary heroism.

Christmas Dinner From New Orleans

"In New Orleans on Christmas Day, as well as on other special occasions and practically every Sunday, dinner always begins with Gumbo File," says New Orleans-born Charles Soublet, chef at the Taberna Restaurant in San Rafael.

"This is one of the great dishes of Creole cookery," continues the chef. "It is really a liquid stew, very satisfying and nutritious."

"The file (pronounced fi-LAY) which gives it its name is the powdered leaves of the sassafras tree, first made by the Indians who lived around New Orleans."

SOUBLET RECALLS the making of Gumbo File as one of the activities on Christmas Eve when he was a boy growing up in New Orleans. The family assembled at the home of the oldest relative to begin preparations for Christmas dinner and to decorate the tree.

For dinner on Christmas Eve, he says, they often had Red Beans and Rice.

The Christmas turkey was prepared by filling it with two pounds of butter. ("I don't know why two pounds," says the chef. "It was just always done.")

THE TURKEY was securely skewered so that the butter did not drip out. Then it was seasoned with salt and pepper and roasted in a moderate oven with frequent bастings of dry, white wine and the pan juices.

When the turkey had roasted for three hours it was removed from the oven and allowed to cool at room temperature. The stuffing was added the next day.

After dinner on Christmas Eve, with the tree decorated, the adults went to midnight Mass, accompanied by the children who had reached the age of 11 and had been confirmed.

AT HOME after Mass the family had a supper of Poor Boy Sandwiches (French bread generously spread with mayonnaise, sliced ham, Swiss cheese, shredded lettuce, chopped tomatoes and sliced pickles) or Oyster Loaf (French bread with the insides scooped out, buttered, toasted, and stuffed with fried oysters and shredded lettuce tossed with mayonnaise). Hot egg nog was served after the sandwiches.

On Christmas Day the family was up at dawn, ate a breakfast of eggs, ham steaks, grits with butter, and hot biscuits with molasses. Then the gifts and toys were distributed and the family went to church. Dinner was served at 2 p.m.

This is a typical New Orleans Christmas dinner menu as recalled by Chef Soublet:

Gumbo File
Hot Fluffy Rice
Tossed Green Salad
(Made early in the day and marinated in vinegar and oil dressing at room temperature)
Roasted Stuffed Turkey
Pork Roast
(Seasoned with garlic)
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Whole New Potatoes cooked with Fresh Green Beans
(Sautéed with salt pork)
Cauliflower Au Gratin

Italian Red Wine
Fruit Cake
Pep-Ah-Tot
Lemon Meringue Pie
Black Coffee

In New Orleans, says the chef, they like their coffee "black as coal and hot as hell."

shells. This is the stock.

Heat olive oil until very hot and brown chicken pieces, then remove and set aside. In the same oil saute ham and sausage for 10 minutes, remove and add to chicken pieces. If the oil has reduced, add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup more.

Saute onions, celery, green pepper and garlic in the same oil, just until soft. Add flour and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add tomatoes and cook five minutes more. Now add the stock gradually, stirring all the while. Add bay leaves, sweet basil, thyme, black pepper, salt, paprika, and cayenne pepper.

Bring to a vigorous boil, lower flame and let simmer for 30 minutes. Add chicken, ham, crab, and shrimps, and let simmer 15 minutes. Add oysters with the liquor and shut off fire. Add wine and parsley and stir well. Sprinkle with the file powder and stir gently.

When ready to serve, re-heat over very low flame. Do not boil after file powder has been added. Makes 12 servings.

Serve in soup plates over steamed dry rice.

PEP-AH-TOT

This is a sugary sweet, peppery dessert, served very hot from the oven. ("In New Orleans the Pep-Ah-Tot goes into the oven when we sit down to dinner," says Chef Soublet).

1 1/2 lbs. sweet potatoes
3 cups sugar
5 tbsp. black pepper
1/2 cup straight Bourbon whiskey.
4 whole eggs
2 cups half-and-half
Boil sweet potatoes in water until tender and soft. Cool to handle, then peel. Mash smooth, add the sugar gradually, whipping constantly. Add black pepper, a tablespoon at a time. Add the eggs and beat well. Add whiskey and whip vigorously. Now add the half-and-half and beat until well incorporated. Transfer to baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. The pudding should not be firm, but somewhat loose. Serves 12.

Serve hot. "Do not disgrace the Pep-Ah-Tot by serving with whipped cream," pleads the chef.

Add shortening and continue cooking. Some of the beans will burst and cause the sauce to thicken. Lower the fire at this point. When the sauce is of the consistency of cream, add the half-and-half. Simmer 20 min-

The Cheery Light From Christmas Candles

San Rafael Firm Helps Meet Growing Demand For These Yule Decorations

By DON KEOWN

Like the decorating of the tree, the giving of gifts and the flaming of the plum pudding, the lighting of the Christmas candle is a holiday tradition that yuletide celebrators still cherish and observe.

In fact, reports the Colonial Sales and Manufacturing Co. of 15 Lovell Avenue, San Rafael, the demand for its Christmas candles carrying its brand name of Carousel continues to increase annually.

Christmas, says York Westgate, owner of the candle company, is by far the biggest season for its products.

ANOTHER GREAT religious holiday, Easter, comes second. But the demand then is far less than at Christmas time.

Colonial takes full advantage of the traditional tie-in of candles with the Christmas season by producing a number of specialties for the holiday trade.

"We start about March 1 turning out candles for Christmas," says Westgate.

DURING A YEAR, the company will manufacture some 200,000 dozen dinner tapers, plus 500,000 novelty and specialty pieces.

Right now, Westgate says, glass items, such as goblets and urns of red and green into which the candle wax has been poured and wicks inserted, are the favored Christmas specialty items.

THIS SALE OF figurines in candle wax is now slow.

"But these things come in waves," says Westgate. "And figurines, no doubt, will ultimately regain their old popularity."

Not only the specialty and novelty items, but the regular tapers or candles also pick up sales momentum at Christmas time, Westgate says.

THE TRADITIONAL reds, greens and whites remain the favorites.

"WESTGATE personally is especially fond of the scented prisms. Most popular the year around, he says, is frangipani, a South Sea Island scent. But at Christmas time, the bayberry moves to the forefront.

"Bayberry candles originated in Massachusetts in Pilgrim times," Westgate relates.

"After a very bad year, there was no tallow for the candles that were traditionally burned for Christmas and New Year's. So the colonists took the wax from the bayberries that grew wild around them to make their candles for the holidays that year."

WESTGATE'S Marin-based firm distributes candles to retailers in 11 western states.

The candles purchased by Marinites in shops in their own county are very likely to be home products. The brand name "Carousel" tells the story.

Colonial Sales and Manufacturing purchases its refined wax from Standard Oil Co. and other large petroleum companies.

"It's a by-product from their refineries, but a much more important one than most people realize," Westgate says.

IN THE YEARS he has been in the candle business, Westgate has seen a steady improvement in the quality of the wax, assuring less smoke and drip and better color control.

"Of course, today we have the dripless candles," he says. "But on the other hand, there is a large demand for candles that do drip, so as to cover wine bottles and other containers with their colored wax."

Scented candles are another major item.

WESTGATE personally is especially fond of the scented prisms. Most popular the year around, he says, is frangipani, a South Sea Island scent. But at Christmas time, the bayberry moves to the forefront.

"After a very bad year, there was no tallow for the candles that were traditionally burned for Christmas and New Year's. So the colonists took the wax from the bayberries that grew wild around them to make their candles for the holidays that year."

THE NEXT year proved to be a very good year for both crops and livestock. As a result, bayberry candles came to be regarded in New England as good luck symbols, especially at New Year's. And they have continued to be burned as part of the holiday celebration in homes not only in New England but across the country.

At Colonial, the annual production peak, when employment climbs from 25 to 100 people, has now passed for 1967. There will be a smaller employment surge prior to Easter. And then begins a steady build-up through the last half of 1968 to yet another peak of 100 or so employees as another Christmas approaches.

OWNER YORK WESTGATE of the Colonial Sales and Manufacturers Co., producers of Carousel candles, examines some of the products of his concern, many of them specialties for the ever-increasing holiday trade.

One market for which Colonial Sales and Manufacturing does not produce is the field of candles for places of worship and for religious rituals.

"THAT," EXPLAINS Westgate, "is a field in itself in that it requires candles that will burn for many hours."

Perhaps the crowning masterpiece of its Carousel products is Colonial's big yule log. The wax log holds a number of candles that are lit, and which can be replaced when they burn down.

"Some customers keep the yule log on their fireplace mantelpiece throughout the year and not just during the holidays," Westgate reports.

WESTGATE RESIDES at 359 Irwin in San Rafael.

Are there candles burning in his home at Christmas time?

"There are candles burning in my home all year," answers Westgate. "And lots of them."

MOST ELABORATE of the holiday specialty pieces produced at Colonial Sales and Manufacturing Co. is this yule log of wax, a popular mantelpiece decoration that is often retained throughout the year.

THIS CANDLE BY Colonial is framed in holiday greenery. It is a popular seller in red or green.

THIS URN is another example of the filled glass pieces that are now especially popular as Christmas candles. The green glass is filled with fragrant bayberry wax.

COUNTRY JOE AND THE FISH — "Electric Music for the Mind and Body" — Vanguard VSD-79244:

This top Bay Area group has been on the Billboard Top 100 LPs list for a string of weeks now and deserves adulation.

Their style is of the folk-rock variety, not fantastically unique but possessing a happy blend of melodic, harmonic and rhythmic interest together with frequently apt lyrics.

The instrumental "Section 43," for two guitars, harmonica and electric organ, was my favorite on the LP, but "Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine" has been their big hit single. "Superbird" is also a winner.

Leader Joe McDonald usually handles the vocals and Barry Melton is the excellent lead guitarist.

The sound is superbly captured without distortion or overdone post-session doctoring by engineers.

The front-cover color photos show what the scene is like at the Fillmore or Avalon.

Although this group has lost Joe and is now known as The Incredible Fish, their second LP with McDonald has just been released as I write this.

LULU sings "To Sir with Love" — Epic BN 26339:

Just plain Lulu has come to the world's attention through the film starring Sydney Poitier and has a Top 40 hit with this tune. Ten other tunes of today include items such as the Beatles' "Day Tripper," "To Love Somebody" and the Neil Diamond tune "The Boat That I Row."

Lulu is approximately in the Pet Clark bag of swinging and tasteful but not earth-shaking pop vocal treatments.

PETER WALKER, GUITAR — "Rainy Day Raga" — Vanguard VSD-79238:

Peter Walker is the so-called music director for so-called Dr. Timothy Leary's "Celebrations." But don't let that move you to dismiss this young man.

He is a very talented guitarist who has a lot in common with Sandy Bull, also on this same label. He plays his guitar like a sitar and winds through fascinating tonal journeys that may pass through American folk music, flamenco, Indian or Arabic music.

One writer has called this sort of thing "American raga." It is hard to describe its calming effect on worn nerves. It's also perfect for doing your Yoga exercises to.

Don't wait for a rainy day to hear this fine stereodisc.

At Christmas time we often think of Baby small and soft and pink;
But seldom think around the tree
Of what the Babe would come to be.

We rarely see Him walking miles,
With little food and fewer smiles;
We like to see Him small and sweet
With three wise kings bent at His feet.

We show Him "love" at Christmas-tide
But he showed real love the day He died.
So remember, try, if just you can,
To keep your mind upon the Babe —
But your heart upon the Man.

January is a month of festivals in Mexico.

If you go to the right place at the right time, you can see ducks wearing eye-glasses, passionate pilgrims praying for miracles, or excavation work on the world's largest ancient pyramid or newest subway.

ACCORDING TO Mexicana Airlines, the most unusual fiesta takes place Jan. 17, when domestic and barnyard animals are taken to church for their annual blessing on the day of gentle St. Anthony Abbot.

The pets are scrubbed and bedecked with ribbons, flowers and clothing, according to the tastes of their masters. You'll spot the best dressed animals at the ex-convent of Churubusco, the baroque church of San Juan Bautista in Mexico City's suburb of Coyoacan, and Santia g o Church in the Plaza of Three Cultures in the capital.

Thousands of Indians make their annual pilgrimage to Chalma on the first six days of the month.

Under way in a corn field at Cholula, south of the capital, is a three-million-dollar three-year project of excavating the world's largest pyramid. The base of the main Cholula pyramid is 1,320 feet long, as compared with 756 feet for the

The Doctor Who Believes In Ghosts

PSYCHIC PHENOMENA: REVELATIONS AND EXPERIENCES by Dorothy Bomar Bradley and Dr. Robert A. Bradley; Parker, 207 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The percentage of medical men who believe wholeheartedly in the presence of ghosts upon this planet must be small.

Dr. Robert A. Bradley, obstetrician, is one who proclaims not only his belief in apparitions, but in reincarnation, poltergeists, extra-sensory perception and various other psychic phenomena as well.

The investigation of psychic incidents has become an avocation of the physician and his wife, Dorothy Bomar Bradley, and provides a subject upon which they frequently lecture.

Now they have produced a book, "Psychic Phenomena: Revelations and Experiences," in which they present their arguments on behalf of the spirit world.

In it, the Bradleys cite occurrences which they claim cannot be explained satisfactorily by today's willingness to accept only the tangible and the material.

Some of these events are the familiar cases long advanced by believers in the psychic as proof of their ideas. Others are less well known or newly publicized, many brought to Dr. Bradley by his patients. And there is yet a third category — those incidents which the Bradleys claim have happened to them personally and to the members of their family.

How The Creative Artist Sees World Around Him

WONDERS, WARRIORS AND BEASTS ABOUNDING by Beryl Barr; Doubleday, 128 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

While the Bradleys seem to take it all in stride and to be on the best of terms with the ghosts that frequent their abode, one cannot help but feel that things must be a bit chaotic in such a "spirited" household.

In the book, Dr. Bradley takes numerous pokes at his own profession for its failure to direct greater attention toward psychosomatic medicine, metaphysical or faith healing, the use of hypnosis (particularly age regression) and the scientific employment of LSD and other mind-affecting drugs. His views are interesting and to a degree convincing. He argues, too, that we as individuals should make fuller use of our psychic potentials.

The format of the book is puzzling. The co-authors write individually, not jointly. Thus one is not always aware at the outset of a chapter whether he is being addressed by Dr. Bradley or by Mrs. Bradley, and there is an annoying switch of writing styles.

This is a popular, rather than a scholarly, treatment of a subject that is broad and deep. Few real skeptics will be persuaded otherwise by the evidence and arguments of the Bradleys that ghosts exist or that reincarnation is a proven fact. But they may find their own opinions shaken at least a bit. And they will very likely discover themselves enjoying the book immensely, despite its faults. It deals with a subject that just about everyone finds fascinating.

THE VICTORIAN AGE edited by Robert Langbaum; Fawcett, 314 pages, paperback, 95 cents. Reviewed by Don Keown.

As part of a "Literature and Ideas Series" under the general editorship of Irving Howe, Robert Langbaum has assembled this collection of essays on the history, social organization and literature of a period which he claims was much less static than generally depicted.

Perceptive study and criticism shows, he maintains, a slow but steady movement toward the dynamic patterns of our modern age.

John Stuart Mill, John Ruskin, T. S. Eliot, William Butler Yeats, Noel Annan, Thomas Carlyle and Thomas Macaulay are only a few upon whom he calls for testimony to support that thesis.

It is a paperback original, and a scholarly, well conceived and provocative project.

PIRATE PORT by Robert Marx; World, 190 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lytle.

Marx is a happy combination of historian, photographer, diver and writer, and makes his account of his work on the sunken town of Port Royal an exciting yarn.

Just before noon, of June 7, 1692, most of the busy town, the center of British trade in the West Indies, was destroyed by an earthquake, a cataclysm that substantially lowered the level of the low cay off Jamaica.

Looting, plunder and careless salvage followed by the local citizens who survived. Marx, under commission of Jamaican government, is picking up where the looters left off. Except his interest is in disclosing the life and times of the notorious pirate city.

Although he and his divers do uncover a catch of silver coins, the prime quest is history. Marx has a fine feeling for history in this book and maintains it among the sharks, manta rays with every bit of age and frustration and ill-use captured by the relentless camera eye.

Included also are 30 articles that have appeared in Sports Illustrated over the years and nominated here as the best, and at least 200 color plates encompassing enough of the sport spectrum to satisfy everyone. And, in addition, there are 16 reproductions of oil paintings of the sports scene.

Christianity's Ardent Advocate
Of Prayer In The Family Circle

By DON KEOWN

"All For Her" is the autobiography of a man who has dedicated his life to the Virgin Mother, who nearly 2,000 years ago gave birth to the Baby Jesus.

Fr. Patrick Peyton, Irish-born farmer's son, began life anew in the United States as a penniless immigrant and survived precarious health to become one of the world's best-known Roman Catholic clergymen.

It was his recovery from tuberculosis as a young priest, after doctors had despaired, that caused him to pledge the remainder of his life to telling mankind the story of Mary who had answered his prayers.

Today Father Peyton occupies in the Roman Catholic religion a position somewhat similar to Billy Graham in Protestantism.

He is internationally known for his Family Rosary Crusade movement that stages rallies around the globe attracting vast multitudes who hear reaffirmed the part that prayer should play in family life. "The family that prays together stays together," the motto of the Crusade, is familiar today to many who do not recognize its origin.

Father Peyton has achieved a further reputation as a producer of radio, television and motion picture programs, both Roman Catholic and of general religious and moral themes. His "Family Theater of the Air" shows drew the enthusiastic participation of some of Hollywood's biggest names, and his 15 films depicting the mysteries of the Rosary have been honored both for their artistic quality and the effectiveness of their religious message.

To this reader, the opening two chapters on Patrick Peyton's boyhood in western Ireland were the most engrossing part of the book. It gives a vivid picture of the courageous struggle of one large Irish family to more than just exist in conditions that might well have led to pessimism and defeat in less determined and less devout people. Religion in the home played a major role in Peyton family life, and it left its imprint upon young Patrick, to be reflected later in his choice of the priesthood and in his selection of service to the mother Mary as his special mission within the Church.

The remainder of the book is not without interest for this non-Catholic and would no doubt command greater absorption from members of the faith. It is largely the story of Father Peyton's surmounting of repeated obstacles, first in establishing himself in this country, then in qualifying for the priesthood and finally in winning acceptance for the unusual program he had envisioned. There follows the chronicling of the putting together of the radio shows, the making of the films, the ocean-hopping to conduct the mammoth Crusade rallies. The insight into the problems and the satisfactions of religious programming is often interesting.

Father Peyton acts and writes always as a devout and humble Christian servant. In truth, piety and humility, praiseworthy (and rare?) as they are as human traits, sometimes provide for bland and pale reading when sustained throughout a book. This, however, is more a criticism of the reading taste than it is of Father Peyton or his book.

But as one follows Father Peyton from country to country for the Crusade gatherings preceded by vigorous advance publicity and contacts, one begins to wonder uneasily if Father Peyton might not be blind to the weaknesses of his movement — the emphasis upon family prayer to the exclusion of other ecclesiastical and social matters, the possible short-time effectiveness of its fruits once the Crusade machinery has moved on, the very personal nature of the organization, etc. Fear not. Father Peyton is aware of these criticisms, and he takes them up honestly and intelligently in the closing chapter of his book.

"All For Her" makes appropriate and satisfying Christmas season reading as the story of one man who has found in one of the central figures of the Christmas Story his inspiration for a program that has left its mark in many lands.

A RARITY in present-day society is the Christian sufficiently interested and involved in his religion to look at it carefully and critically, and then sufficiently courageous and articulate to verbalize his findings.

Attorney William Stringfellow is one of the few, and his books on Christianity and the contemporary world have won him a large audience.

"Count It All Joy" is his newest book, based upon lectures he delivered in 1962 before the United Christian Youth Movement's Ecumenical Study Conference.

Here Stringfellow seems to us somewhat more obscure and difficult to follow in some passages than he has been in his earlier books. But on many, many points, he is as plain-spoken and as clear and convincing as ever.

His discussion of what ecumenicalism really means, his analysis of anti-Semitism, his report on his experiences as a Sunday school teacher for a class of New York City street kids, these and other passages have an immediacy and a direct application to present conditions.

Stringfellow built his lectures — "reflections on faith, doubt and temptation," he calls them — around the Letter of James, which he says is "... much maligned, often ignored, seldom used in churches (and) controversial in its treatment of the tension between faith in God's sufficient grace and the service of good works."

There is a need, Stringfellow feels, for such controversy, as an antidote to conformity, in the world and the church today.

IN THE JUST published "My Lord and My God" from Exposition Press, the Swedenborgian theologian, Rev. Theodore Pitcairn, offers his rebuttal to the "God is dead" theorists.

Edward Uhl, president of the publishing firm, says the book's message is "both provocative and pertinent to our troubled times."

THE HOLIDAYS are cookie-baking time. So not coincidentally, Fawcett has published as a 75-cent Gold Medal paperback the "Woman's Day Cookie Cook Book." It contains more than 300 recipes from the popular women's magazine, a large portion of them especially suited to the Christmas season.

THREE FOR McGEE by John D. MacDonald; Doubleday, 452 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Doubleday herein presents in hardcover three John D. MacDonald detective yarns, all previously published in paperback and all featuring tough guy Travis McGee.

MacDonald rates at the top among the spinners of hard-boiled crime novels, and McGee is his most popular creation.

The stories here are "Nightmare in Pink," "A Purple Place for Dying" and "The Deep Blue Good-By." All are marked by a plentitude of the action suspense, mystery and sex that are the MacDonald trademark.

Richard Condon has said:

"John D. MacDonald is the greatest American storyteller." He's also one of the most prolific with more than 50 novels and 32 million copies sold to his credit in the last 17 years. Those who missed one of his McGee tales will welcome this opportunity to fill the gap, and to re-read one or two of their old favorites.

Don't Neglect Those Christmas Gift Plants

Christmas brings with it an annual flood of gift plants, too many of which fail to take their place in the garden later for one sad reason: neglect.

We have no statistics on the subject, but the number of azaleas, poinsettias, chrysanthemums and other potted gift plants that succumb shortly after Christmas must be staggering.

We know these are busy times, but still timely is a reminder that only a minimum of attention will insure a long and happy life for your gift plants when their life indoors is over.

THE BIGGEST threat to a potted plant's health is the drying influence of a heated house in winter. You can minimize the threat by giving the plant a bit of fresh air occasionally.

Place it near an open window or, if it is not too cold outdoors, on a back porch for a few hours. And water it well — not to the point of sogginess but always moist throughout the root ball.

Azaleas are one of the favorite plants for Christmas giving and also one of the most susceptible to drying conditions. Often they are planted in pure peat moss, which becomes almost impervious to water when it once dries out.

Water these daily and once every few days plunge the whole pot in a sink full of water until soaked. Then drain.

AZALEAS, WHEN they've finished blooming indoors, may be placed in a semi-shaded bed in the garden. Leave them in the pot or transplant them, as you see fit. If you leave them potted simply sink the pots in the ground to rim level.

Poinsettias may be saved for later use in the garden or left potted for indoor use again next year.

If you decide on the latter course, water the plant until it stops blooming, then cut it back to a few inches (perhaps two buds) and let it dry out in the garage or potting shed. Next April bring it out, repot it with new soil and start watering it to new growth.

Cyclamen, chrysanthemums, heather, holly and other blooming Christmas gift plants may all be planted in the garden at the end of bloom. Meanwhile, water them regularly.

THE POINSETTIA is one of the most popular choices as a Christmas gift plant. Given proper care, it can be saved for later use in the garden or preserved for indoor use again next year.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Peaches and nectarines, both subject to leaf curl, are ready for the first of two winter sprayings to prevent infestation.

✓ Dig and discard roses that no longer perform well and plant some of the new roses in their stead.

✓ Stay off rain-soaked lawns as much as possible to prevent compaction.

✓ The bareroot season has arrived. Roses and many other deciduous shrubs can be planted now.

✓ Frost-damaged plants? Don't prune the injured areas immediately. Give the plants some time to recover first.

✓ Remember to keep your living Christmas trees well watered while they are indoors, and to keep light bulbs from touching the foliage.

So you haven't yet come up with a gift for one of the people on your list?

Or what you purchased for Uncle Henry or Aunt Henrietta now looks inadequate, and you wish you had picked up a second gift?

True, the downtown and shopping center stores are closing. But don't panic. There's still a solution.

MOST, PERHAPS all, Marin County nurseries will be open tomorrow (Sunday). And they offer a fine variety of gifts from which the last-minute shopper can select.

Gardeners will always appreciate a gift to garden with: a flowering plant or shrub, a book on landscaping or a piece of garden gadgetry. And we have yet to hear of any non-gardener who doesn't appreciate a blooming plant, as well.

Christmas offers an excuse to invest in a special bit of needed equipment for the garden: electric hedge clippers, a power mower, a new heavy-duty garden sprayer. And gardening families might want to treat themselves to something as special as a pre-cast garden pool, complete with pump, to add running water to their landscape.

THESE ARE investments which give years and years of pleasure.

In the same sense many will use Christmas as an excuse to add a special shrub or tree to the garden; a lovely new rhododendron or a very special camellia with a tub to plant it in; a complete rose garden or a patio-size tree.

But back to the business at hand which is to find those last minute gifts which all of us have yet to buy.

IN THE PLANT line, nurserymen report that blooming azaleas are always popular. So, too, are African Violets, camellias, cyclamen and chrysanthemums, all in bloom.

Bulbs also top many Christmas gift lists, especially daffodils and tulips, which are still available for planting in some areas.

Garden tools, from a simple new trowel to the above mentioned power mower, are ideal gifts; and so, too, are books on gardening.

And you can simplify the whole thing by giving a gift certificate. Armed with such a certificate your gardening friend can shop for his own gift after the holiday season is over.

The Handyman's Corner —

Today's Bright Idea

ONE RESULT of the holidays is to make householders more "hospitality conscious." And one way of creating a feeling of hospitality is to make the entry to your home more inviting. One imaginative way of accomplishing this is to use outdoor carpeting as a huge welcome mat that also serves to tie the indoors with the outdoors. Carpet your foyer, entrance hall or living room with it . . . then run it right out of the house, down the steps and along the walk. Go as far as you wish. The carpet withstands all weather, dries fast and lies flat. Keep it down as a permanent installation, although, if you must, you can have the outside portion cut and bound at the threshold so that it can be rolled up for storage and used outdoors only on special occasions. It doesn't have to be red. But red is the traditional color of hospitality. It can be purchased in a number of colors for about $6 a yard.

Book Marks In History Of Marin

COVER PHOTO

FOR 60 years, Christmas Seals have been, for Marinites, symbols of the holidays and the charitable spirit that is so much a part of the season. Since 1907, the seals have been appearing annually. All are reproduced on your Marin Magazine Christmas edition cover. Some will have special personal significance for Marinites—the year of a birth, the year of a wedding, the year of an especially cherished Christmas season, etc. And some will serve as "book marks" in Marin County history, recalling events on these pages, accompanied by the appropriate seal.

The Big Trees Preserved For Posterity—1909

In 1909, scenic Redwood Canyon on Mount Tamalpais officially became Muir Woods National Monument, making Marin County the first to secure a monument under the 1906 Antiquities Act passed by Congress.

It was not accomplished without difficulty or controversy.

In December, 1907, the North Coast Water Co. had begun condemnation proceedings for 47 acres of Redwood Canyon land upon which it had planned a reservoir for Sausalito.

The indomitable William Kent, who owned Redwood Canyon, hurled a defiance at the water company, declaring: "Sausalito need not look to any relief on the water question to the North Coast Water Co. for at least two years, if then, as I am not going to let them destroy that beautiful grove of native timber until the highest court in the land has been appealed to. That will be at least two years. I purchased Redwood Canyon which contains 600 acres from Lovell White and the Tamalpais Land and Water Co. in 1905 for $45,000. He was offered $100,000 for it but knowing my intention of keeping it intact and desire to have it a national park, he let me have it . . . it is an outrage to think its beauty should be marred by the North Coast Water Co."

In 1906 Congress had passed the Antiquities Act which allowed the federal government to accept gifts of land for national parks and monuments.

In 1908 Kent proffered the U.S. 295 acres of Redwood Canyon with the request that it be made into a national monument and named Muir Woods in honor of John Muir, the pioneer western naturalist. In July of that year, Gifford Pinchot, head of the U.S. Forestry Service and one of President Theodore Roosevelt's ablest lieutenants in conservation programs, came west to attend a meeting in San Francisco on natural resources conservation. On July 22, Pinchot, Sen. Francis C. Newlands of Nevada and others made the trip to Redwood Canyon. Meeting there with Kent, they visited the magnificent redwood groves and Pinchot left for Washington, determined to do all in his power to make Redwood Canyon a reserve for all the people of the United States.

The following year Muir Woods National Monument was officially designated.

In September, 1921, Kent donated 78 more acres to the Monument and the Mt. Tamalpais and Muir Woods Railway added approximately 50 more acres. This additional land was proclaimed part of the National Monument (under the 1906 Act) by President Warren G. Harding. Muir Woods National Monument then encompassed 426 acres. Small lots, parcels and acreage have been added so that Muir Woods is now about 485 acres of federal land and 17 acres of state land.

The highest redwood in Muir Woods reaches 246 feet into the sky and is probably 1,800 years old. This year that giant tree was seen by more than 700,000 persons from all over the world.

Railroad's Demise Marks End Of Era—1930

An era of innocence ended in 1930 for Marin when the "Crookedest Railroad in the World" shut down forever more.

In 1896 a group of business men met in San Francisco and decided to build a railway to the top of Mt. Tamalpais to accommodate the flocks of tourists descending upon Mill Valley every weekend. It was decided that the railway would be named the Mill Valley and Mt. Tamalpais Scenic Railway. Sidney B. Cushing, owner of a hotel in Corte Madera Canyon and president of the San Rafael Light and Gas Co., was elected president.

Teams of laborers worked full days and by lanterns at night digging a right-of-way from Mill Valley to the summit. Tracks were laid in 265 precarious curves across the face of Mt. Tamalpais and the first trainload of passengers climbed the mountain on Aug. 27, 1896. It was truly the crookedest railroad in the world.

Before long, it became a custom for a happy couple or a city father with his throng to catch the morning ferry in San Francisco and cross the bay to Sausalito. From there they would catch the electric train of the Northwestern Pacific and it was only a few minutes ride to Mill Valley Depot where the friendly little mountain train would be waiting beside the platform, just across from the Interurban. With two or three open cars waiting and the Shay locomotive breathing warmly into the air, the passengers would quickly fill up the cars and up to the summit they would go, the engine running backwards and pushing steadily all the way.

Lunch could be taken on the glassed-in porch of the Tavern.

After lunch it was "All Aboard For the Gravity Ride to Muir Woods." Branching off the main line at Bow-Knot, the Gravities proceeded in solemn procession, one by one, down toward the glories of the redwood forest. By easy grades the cars coasted along the sides of the mountain canyon through laurel, fir, oak, madrone and other varieties of tree growth, finally stopping at Muir Inn on a sunny slope overlooking the very redwoods themselves.

During the 1915 boom the railway carried an average of 700 passengers daily during the busy summer months.

By 1925 however, much of the little railway's business fell off; roads had been built and the trip up the mountain was now being taken by "autoists." It wasn't long before the directors appeared anxious to get out of the declining tourist railway business.

It was the big mountain fire of July 2, 1929, (which also burned over 100 homes in Mill Valley) that finally brought the little railway to its final chapter.

Although new tires were ordered after the fire, none was laid and the line was abandoned in 1930—the end of an era.

Marin Mobilizes Against Dreaded TB—1932

The Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association was organized in 1932 by Dr. Mary W. Harris who was its first president.

Dr. Mary, as she is still affectionately known, was born in Newport, Vt., in 1876. Graduated from Lyndon Institute in 1896, she went to Colorado where she received her M.D. from Colorado School of Medicine in 1911 and her B.A. from the University of Colorado in 1912.

Perhaps it was providence which brought Dr. Mary to the Bay Area. In 1915 she came to San Francisco to see the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Although she had planned to return to Chicago to begin her medical practice, instead she attended Stanford University clinics and became chief resident physician of Children's Hospital. She held that post from 1915 until 1918.

Dr. Mary, always interested in tuberculosis, was secretary of the San Francisco Tuberculosis Association and served until 1922 when she went to Chico to become resident physician at Enloe Hospital. A short time later, Dr. Mary became a resident physician at Ross General Hospital. Soon after her arrival in Marin County, she saw the need of early diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis. The quiet, gentle-spoken doctor brought together a group of volunteers and organized a TB association.

By carefully safeguarding its money, the association bought a mobile unit equipped with a fluoroscope and employed a registered nurse. She traveled throughout the county and the X-rays taken were studied so that those who showed signs of tuberculosis could be given immediate treatment. The registered nurse was the only paid worker; all others were volunteers, and Dr. Mary worked without recompense until she resigned in 1937.

Dr. Mary retired from Ross General Hospital in 1955. She now lives in Santa Venetia where she is frequently visited by those who appreciate and remember the great services she did for the people of Marin.

The Marin County Tuberculosis and Health Association met for years in San Rafael City Hall. Later it located on Grand Avenue, San Rafael, and is now in a suite of offices at 206 Bon Air Center in the Greenbrae Shopping Center. It is one of 45 TB associations throughout California.

With the decline of tuberculosis in the United States, the TB associations have gone into research and education not only in tuberculosis but also in the causes and cures of emphysema, chronic bronchitis and other respiratory ailments and diseases.

At the Marin unit a staff of four paid workers, many dedicated volunteers and the board of directors oversee the mailing of the Christmas Seals, the traditional and only fund-raising the TB associations conduct.

This year the Marin TB and Health Association has mailed over 50,000 packets of Christmas Seals throughout the county.

Uncle Sam Finds New Nest For Planes—1935

On May 12, 1935, some 40,000 spectators walked across new runways lined by B-10 bombers and watched California Gov. Frank M. Merriam officially turn over the new military airfield in North Marin to famous Brig. Gen. Henry (Hap) Harper of the Army Air Corps.

It was 10 years after the "war to end all wars" that the War Department had decided to establish a bomber base on the West Coast. In 1929 a group of Federal inspectors selected a stretch of flat land on San Pedro Bay, property which had once been a part of Don Ignacio Pacheco's Mexican land grant.

In July, 1930, President Herbert Hoover signed into law the Kahn Bill which provided more than three million dollars for the development of an airfield, and it was decided that the field would be named for Lloyd Andrews Hamilton.

Born in Troy, N. Y., in 1894, young Hamilton enlisted in the Army in 1917. By 1918 he was a commissioned officer flying with the British 3rd Aero Squadron in France. Hamilton was the first American officer to fly with the Royal Flying Corps and was also the first in a squadron of 150 men to shoot an enemy aircraft. Soon assigned to the U.S. Army Air Corps, 17th Aero Squadron, the daring young pilot led a bombing mission over Belgium. While flying 20 feet off the ground, strafing a German aerodrome, Lieutenant Hamilton's plane was shot down and he was killed. He was 24 years old. Posthumously, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

The years of the Great Depression held up the building program at the field, but following the 1935 ceremonies, the crowds thrilled to the sight of 21 of the large bombers led through overhead aerial maneuvers by Lt. Col. C. L. Tinker.

During World War II, Hamilton Field became a stepping-off base for the Pacific Theater.

After World War II, when the Air Force became independent of the Army, Hamilton Field was officially named Hamilton Air Force Base. It now functions both as a regional headquarters and first line of defense against enemy air attack for the San Francisco Greater Bay Area.

Hamilton AFB is headquarters of the 4th Air Force which geographically stretches from Mexico to Canada, east to the Rocky Mountains and 600 miles west into the Pacific, covering the nation's second largest population area. Hamilton is also western regional headquarters for NORAD (North American Air Defense).

The famous old 78th Fighter Wing now makes it home at Hamilton.

One of the most attractive Air Force bases on the West Coast Hamilton boasts a military population of 3,800 service men and 1,225 civilian employees.

Bridge That Spanned The Golden Gate—1937

Thirty years ago, in 1937, the front door of Marin County swung wide open — the Golden Gate, once the destination of prairie schooners and west-bound pioneers, was spanned by the world's largest suspension bridge.

As early as 1917 controversy raged around and about the feasibility of the bridge, much as it does today about the possibility of a second deck. It was in 1917 that San Francisco City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy invited world famous bridge designer and builder Joseph B. Strauss to investigate the possibility of spanning the Gate. Strauss, who had designed over 400 bridges in a 24-year career, proposed a 4,000-foot span costing about 25 million dollars.

In 1921 the California Legislature approved formation of The Golden Gate Bridge Association which would set up an incorporated bridge district to finance construction. The bridge was to be operated as a public toll span.

During the next several years bitter fights developed. Many opposing the span fought the formation of the bridge district in the courts.

In 1929, however, the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District was incorporated and began to levy taxes. A 35-million-dollar bond issue was passed in November, 1930, by voters of the counties of Marin, San Francisco, Sonoma, Humboldt, Del Norte and parts of Napa and Mendocino.

Work was already started when a group of taxpayers slapped yet another suit against the district in 1930, questioning the constitutionality of the district's power to levy taxes. The bridge district finally won the suit and in the cold of January 1932 a charge of dynamite blasted apart the first layer of bedrock under the Golden Gate Channel.

The Marin tower was raised the first year, the San Francisco tower the second year, and a catwalk was strung between them. A giant spinning wheel turned out 80,000 miles of wire cable which was compressed into two round fat strands and anchored in the saddles, high in the towers. Suspending cables were strung like harp strings, the deck was laid, and in 1937 the Golden Gate had been spanned by a magnificent bridge.

An enigma, the bridge has been a symbol of home and safe harbor to thousands of servicemen and world travelers; yet to a few it is a symbol of despair and the end of hope; the suicide rate from the bridge is slightly less than one every 30 days.

An enigma in a different way, the bridge links Marin and San Francisco and is crossed by more than two-and-a-half-million vehicles each month. It affords a wonderful convenience, but on each side creates a troublesome bottleneck of traffic.

A New Seat For Marin's Government—1962

Although conceived, born and raised in a morass of bitter controversies, the Marin County Civic Center stands as a monument not only to the genius of its architect, but to the perseverance and dedication of the people it serves.

In 1952 the county government desperately needed space and the supervisorial races that year raged around the question of where to locate a civic center complex. In 1953 a 10-man Citizens

Committee appointed by the Board of Supervisors recommended the county buy the 140-acre Scettrini property in Santa Venetia. The County acquired an option but it expired because of too many delays and debates. The Board of Supervisors later went ahead and decided to buy it anyway and condemnation proceedings through the courts ensued and added considerably to the price.

Even after the site was purchased in 1956, foes of the Civic Center insisted that the county government and courts should be in San Rafael proper. A court decision finally interpreted the law — the county government could be "at" San Rafael, or in its environs.

In June of 1957, the board asked famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright to design a civic center.

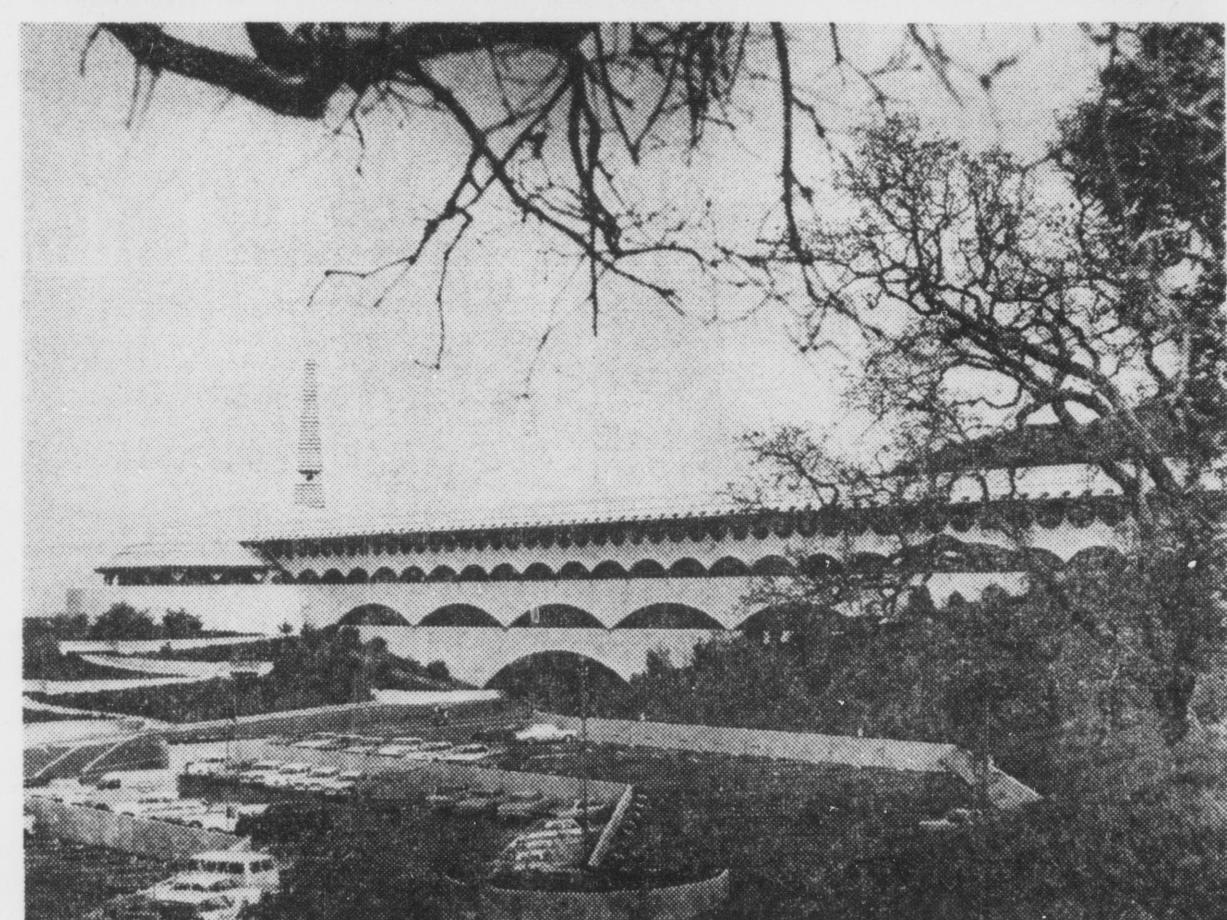

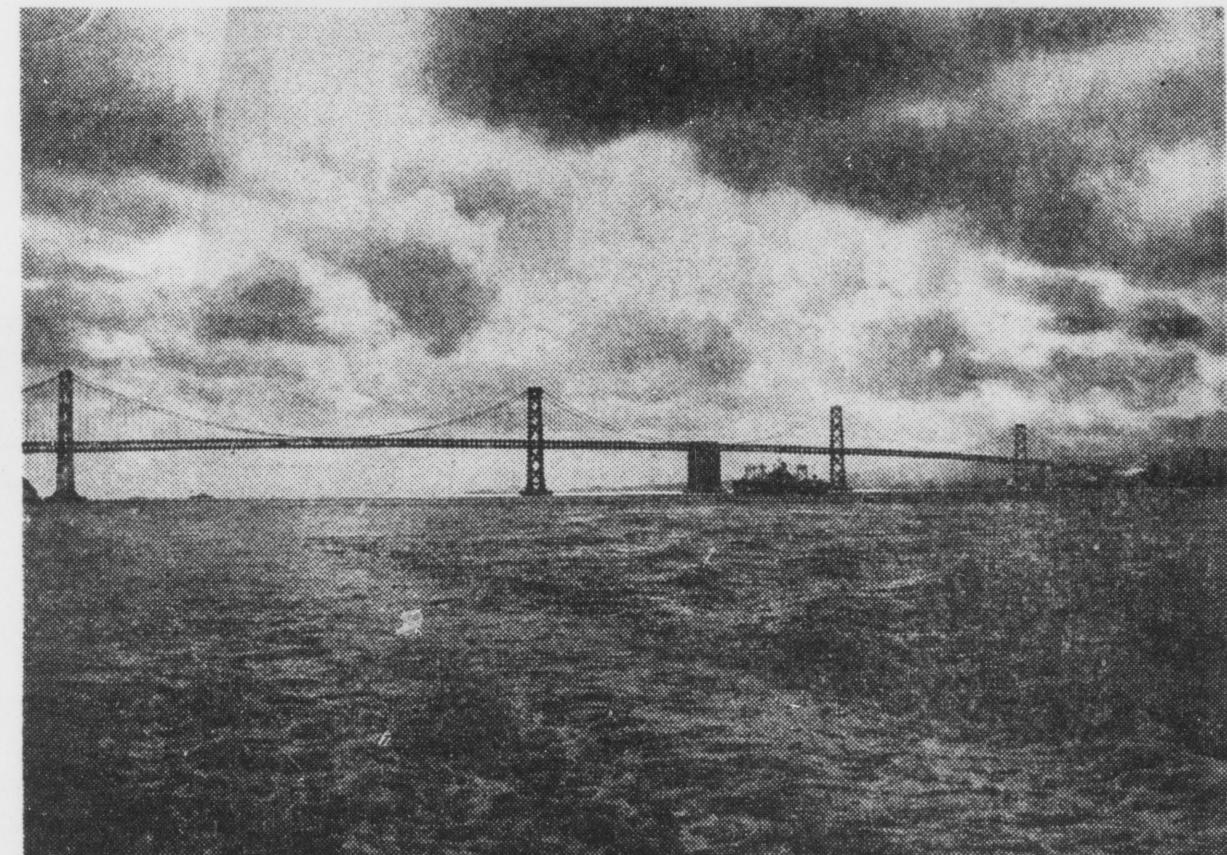

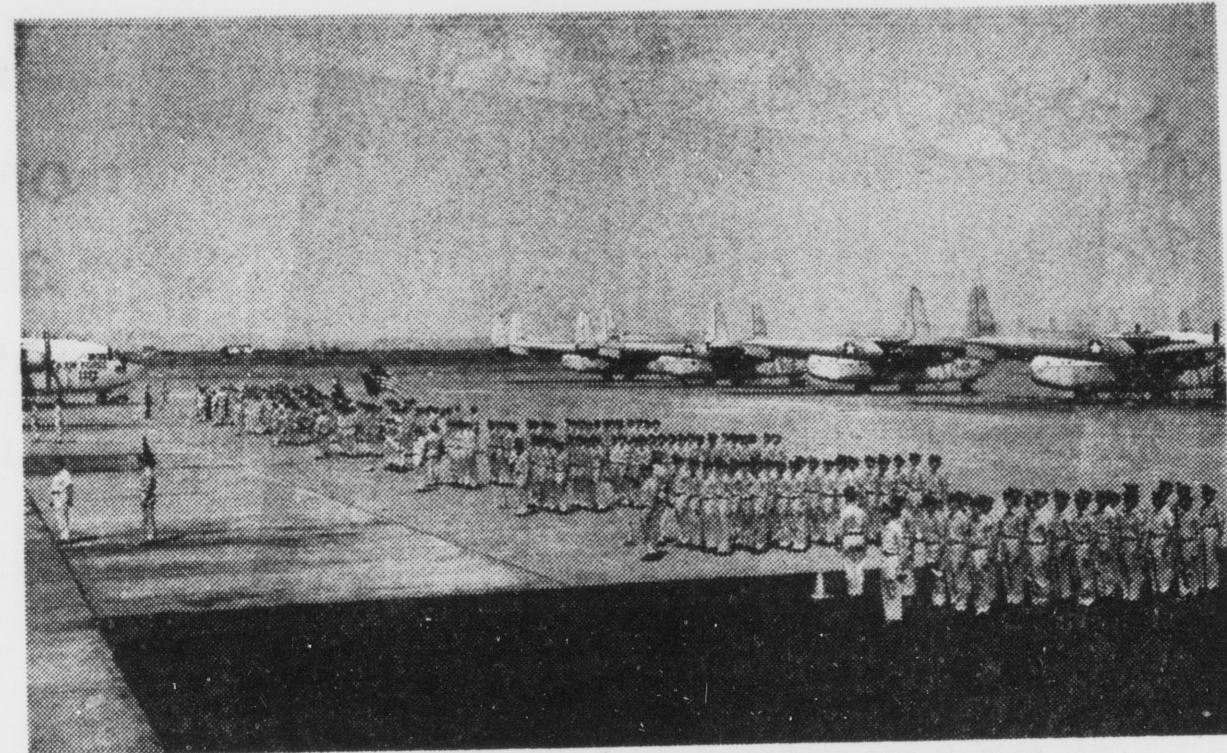

All through July of 1957, Supervisors hassled over the contract with Wright, and finally on the night of July 30, it was signed. The next night Wright spoke at San Rafael High School auditorium where he kept a large crowd laughing and applauding with his sense of humor and homilies. The Marin County Civic Center was to be Wright's 770th building project and he was anxious to get started.

Two days later Wright inspected the site of seven hills in Santa Venetia and pronounced it "beautiful." Exhilarated, he then attended a Board of Supervisors' meeting only to hear a letter read describing him as a supporter of Communist activities. Insulted, Wright stood up and declared he was a "loyal American and everybody knows it."

In January of 1961, a three-to-two vote by members of the Board of Supervisors had a "Stop-Work Order" issued on the project. There was the suggestion that the whole thing might better be made into a county hospital. The people of Marin were up in arms and on Jan. 12 more than 300 gathered at the Court-house threatening recall, law suits and grand jury investigations. When work was resumed on Jan. 17, the I-J editorialized, "Unanimous action of the Board of Supervisors in voting to recommend work today on the Civic Center brings reason back into a confused situation."

Finally, in January, 1962, planning dedication ceremonies for the first unit of the new Civic Center was begun by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce. Finally, San Francisco Theological Seminary President Theodore Gill gave the dedication address on Oct. 13, 1962.

Now with first phase of the Civic Center completed, a Hall of Justice is more than half-way finished.

THREE landmarks in Marin County history from the eventful 1900s: At top, Hamilton Field, now Hamilton Air Force Base, was dedicated in 1935 (1962 photograph). In center, the Golden Gate Bridge was opened to traffic in 1937. And in bottom photo, the Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Marin Civic Center first unit was dedicated in 1962.
